FLYIN' JENNY

WHAT A TOUGH SKULL YOU HAVE, VON GRANDMA!
NOW TO GET THIS SHIP BACK OVER FRIENDLY LAND BEFORE I RUN INTO A FLOCK OF FLAK!
OH-OH! NOT SO GOOD·· CONTROLS JAMMED TIGHTER THAN A CLAM SHELL.
8-7-43
FORTUNES OF WAR CAN CERTAINLY CHANGE FAST!
IF VON STAYS OUT WE'LL SPIN IN AND BOTH BE KILLED·· IF HE COMES TO I'LL STILL BE A PRISONER. WELL···
I WON'T BE MUCH HELP TO MY COUNTRY SCATTERED ALL OVER GERMANY··· WAKE UP, VON LUCKY BURPOHEIM!
SPLIT SECONDS COUNT, SO IF YOU WON'T WAKE UP····
····I'LL HAVE TO TAKE STERNER MEASURES!
TO REGAIN CONTROL OF THE SPINNING PLANE, JENNY RELEASED THE GERMAN SPY'S SAFETY BELT. HE IMMEDIATELY TUMBLED OUT.
MAYBE THE COLD AIR FANNING HIM WILL BRING HIM TO ··I HOPE SO.
WAR'S A SAVAGE BUSINESS··IT WAS HIS LIFE AGAINST MINE. BUT I WISH HE'D PULL THAT RING!
SUDDENLY, THOUSANDS OF FEET BELOW HER, SOME TRAINED REFLEX ACTION OF THE TUMBLING, UNCONSCIOUS FLYER MAKES HIM GRIP THE RELEASE RING·····
AND AS SUDDENLY THE SKY EXPLODES WITH ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE AROUND JENNY'S PLANE.
GUESS MY CONSCIENCE JUST ISN'T WAR-MINDED I SHOULDN'T BE GLAD I DIDN'T KILL THAT FELLOW, BUT I AM.
AS THE GERMAN SPY NEARS THE GROUND HE REGAINS CONSCIOUSNESS···
OUTWITTED BY AN AMERICAN GIRL·· AND A PRETTY ONE AT THAT. NO GREATER DISGRACE CAN BEFALL ME.
A LITTLE LATER··CONFRONTED BY SUPERIOR OFFICERS··
YOU HAVE FAILED, THUS HUMILIATING OUR FUEHRER. YOU MUST DIE
IT IS JUST AS WELL. I KNOW NOW THERE CAN BE ONLY ONE END FOR ALL OF US. WE CANNOT WIN!
MEANWHILE··JENNY CLIMBS ABOVE THE ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE AND STREAKS FOR HOME!
JENNY DARE IN RECCO NINE TO EL FLYOLO·· COURSE FOUR·FOUR-ONE··· SEND ESCORTS·
HERE COMES THE DAWN, BUT NO JENNY. RICK, WHAT DO YOU RECKON THEM MURDERIN' HEINIES··
DON'T THINK ABOUT IT, BABE··UNLESS YOU FEEL LIKE PRAYING FOR A MIRACLE TO HAPPEN!
8-7-43
AND DOES JENNY NEED IT!
··ENEMY PLANES ATTACKING··PORT WING RIDDLED·· HOW'S FOR SOME HELP, PALS?
I'VE STILL GOT ONE GOOD WING ·· AND A PRAYER·· AND I'M HOPING!

We'll have two mint ails and order our dinner When he left she folded rown hands on the edge of able and looked at Meegan an amused frown. "I've been ng into her some. She re- me of a kitten I used to have. He was scared silly when I first got him. Always running under the tables and sofa to avoid me. But he got over that and he was the most affectionate and intelligent pet I ever had. Erica is like that. Scared and proud."

"And affectionate and intelligent," Meegan said.

"I thought of asking her to have dinner with us tonight but it's been a long time since you and I got together. One of the things I like about her is that she's never pretended to be other than what she is. She might have thrown a lot of parties and passed out a lot of food and drinks and had a gang in all the time. That's one way to crash. You have to give her credit for having more dignity than that. She's probably kept her sister-in-law from making a fool of herself. Of all that god-awful get-ups that woman has them! We think we're the salt of the earth but it's the gals like Erica who can type with all their fingers and who know the debit from the credit side of a ledger and who will go to work with their lunches under their arms who will help to win this war. One of these days she'll look back and think what a fool she was for wasting this summer and for caring whether we like her or not. She'll have more to boast about than beating a man one-up on the 27th hole." When the waiter came and placed their cocktails before them and went away again. Adele said, "Toby still sees her once in a while. What's the score on that or don't you know?"

Meegan picked up the fragile glass. "I don't know. Truly I don't. He never tells me anything."

"Erica is the best thing that ever happened to Toby, but nothing will come of it as long as Clare is around. That's the score! You don't have to be a genius at math to figure that one out." Her small dark eyes brightened as she lifted the glass to her mouth. "You wouldn't keep anything from your old pal, would you? You look . . . well, sort of shot about something."

Meegan smiled. "I'm tired, Adele. That's all."

"Don't try to kid me. Your game has been off since that day you went to Washington to see Paul. I like him but even an old maid like me wouldn't marry him. He's even going to have trouble getting a girl to marry him for his money." She looked straight at Meegan. "It wouldn't be Fayne Christopher, would it, baby? This island has ears and eyes on all sides. A couple of the rocking chair brigade saw you with him. You don't have to tell me anything and you know I'd sock the first person who said anything nasty about you. That's not the point. The point is that Clare is in your way . . . for the first time."

"You're having hallucinations, darling."

"Am I? A matchmaker old maid, huh? Okay, so you won't talk."

"We ran into each other quite by accident in the station and he offered to drive me down. We were warm and tired and we went in for a quick swim. You can't make anything out of that. No one can. No one would have said or thought anything if Van, for instance, had brought me home."

"I can make something out of it. Two and two make four and you and Fayne make the sparks fly upward. Now Clare is in your way. See how you like that. I don't make cracks about marriage, as a rule. I don't about what's happening to Sue and Van's marriage with Van's drinking more and more. But I'll make all the cracks I please about Clare's marriage because it isn't one. She uses her wedding ring as a shield to hide her foul tricks. God, if she could be rubbed out as you eradicate a wrong word, think of all the people who'd be straightened out. Now you . . ." She pulled up her head and narrowed her eyes and grinned. "I guess I've been reading too many murder mysteries to pass nights away down here. In them before the murder is committed, you look for the person who is causing all the unhappiness to the other characters. That's the person who will be rushed out before long. Gruesome, what?"

Meegan shook her head. "Very. I should think you could find healthier entertainment in the evening, Adele."

"I hate evenings. Nothing to do. So, I read and wonder if I could write a beter story. The perfect crime. That's what I want to write."

"I'd rather hear about your golf game."

"Sissy!"

Meegan nodded and smiled but her heart, heavy only a moment ago, felt as if penetrated by some unpleasant stimulant. Her imagination again, she thought, or was it true that Adele had a queer look as if she, too, had been penetrated by some unpleasant stimulant?

The lights on the veranda were turned on, making the shadows disappear and changing the atmosphere of the club house from a place of sports and chasing children to one where soon there would be music and dancing and the rustle of soft gowns.

Adele took another cigaret and struck a match, but holding the lighted match in mid-air she said, low, "Don't look now but here comes Van in his cups . . . and I mean in his cups. The way he looks he's been spending the whole afternoon down in the bar."

With her back to the entrance Meegan could not see him and had no wish to.

She said, "I'm supposed to be at Sue's at ten. She and Van are coming to the dance tonight."

"He'll never dance tonight. Somebody ought to tell him that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points. He's all over the place. If we were sitting closer to the door, he'd be in our laps. The fool . . . "Getting up, she moved quietly to the wall lamp and turned it out and then came quietly back to the table. "I don't want him to see us. He'd never go. We'd never get rid of him." Jerking up her head, she said, "Quiet . . . There's someone coming up the steps . . . Sue . . . She has him by the arm . . . She's leading him down the steps . . . There he's out of sight now."

When the sound of the motor died away, Adele got up and turned on the lamp again.

Ethyl Battin Attends Meeting Of American Dancing Masters

Conducts Symposium on Problems of Child Delinquency.

Miss Ethyl Battin has returned from New York City where she spent a week attending a meeting of the Dancing Masters of America, there to observe the latest methods in dance training and technique.

Lectures on anatomy, so important in the scientific study of the dance, were featured at the gathering instructed by a staff made up of many of the finest members of the dancing profession.

One member of the faculty, Catherine Littlefield, arranged all the choreography for Sonja Henie's ice ballet and is also prima ballerina of the Philadelphia Ballet company.

Symposiums held daily were of particular benefit, Miss Battin declares, since they allowed for individual expression of dancing masters from all parts of the country, whose problems are strangely similar. Interest in this open forum centered in ballet, tap, acrobatic and ballroom dancing techniques.

One of the questions discussed was the currently important problem of juvenile delinquency which the group agreed could be alleviated to some degree by the cooperative effort of parents and teachers in directing each child's emotional energy into some cultural channel such as a study of the dance.

This physical expression of emotion through music, educators agree, is of inestimable value in providing a safety valve for the pent up energy that seeks an outlet in war time.

Demonstrations by selected groups in all phases of the dance were an arresting part of the Dancing Masters' program, Miss Battin states. Her photo with one of these groups appeared in the New York World-Telegram last week.

Miss Battin's enthusiasm for dance training for children centers in the fact that she believes dancing combines, in well balanced fashion, many of the elements which make for health and grace in the little lady growing up. She sums up her thought nicely when she says, "Dancing can make a child as strong as a horse, yet appear as fragile as an orchid."

This week Miss Battin has returned to her studio with new enthusiasm for her work with Mansfield's younger set and countless new routines and ideas for classes this fall.

Limited registration for the fall semester will be held between August 16 and 31, groups to be formed the first week in September.

In addition to directing her summer dancing school at the Battin Studio, 22½ S. Main, Miss Battin is at present also busy working on the dance choreography for the forthcoming production of the Children's Theater.

Navy Recruits Learn To Be At Home In Water

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(U.P.)—Naval officials here are looking for a blue-jacket that can't swim. Recruits may have seen water only on Saturday nights when taking the regular once-over, but after going through the course in aquatic sprouts at the San Diego Naval training station, sailors are as much at home as they are digging into their favorite apple pie.

Training under the guidance of the Physical Education Division at the Naval Training Station, headed by Lt. Comdr. W. K. Dunn, USNR, the bluejackets are taught to cope with any of the emergencies that may arise at sea as well as being able to emulate denizens of the deep in swimming ability.

Knowing what to do if the day should ever come when the sailor must leap overboard from the deck of a carrier or battleship is half the battle in being able to keep alive at sea. Thus the bluejackets are taught to swim under water covered with blazing oil and to convert trousers into waterwings, to swim out of danger in lifejackets or to protect themselves from underwater explosions.

Crowd Jams Park, Quickly Consumes 175 Watermelons

Even 175 watermelons won't last very long when there are hundreds of people to serve, Johns park officials discovered last night at the park's annual watermelon festival.

The crowd started gathering at 6 p. m. and shortly after that the stands selling ice cream and cake, popcorn, soft drinks, and watermelon opened. They closed again at 10 p. m. when the entire stock was depleted with the exception of the popcorn.

During the evening, guests wandered through the park, ate or participated in the games. Music was furnished by an accordion ensemble from Smart's studio.

Robert Stevenson, president of the Park association, was chairman of the festival and other members of the association were in charge of the concessions.

Apple Varieties for the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released By Central Press Ass'n.

If your enthusiasm for Victory gardening is such that you contemplate setting out a few apple trees this fall or next spring, give lots of thought to and obtain all the local advice you can regarding a proper selection of varieties.

Since the culture of apple trees in a Victory garden is a rather long time venture, the proper selection of varieties is perhaps the most important factor in the success of your home orchard.

So far as possible, home growers should choose varieties which require a minimum of spraying. Varieties which ripen during the summer or early fall generally require less spraying than late winter varieties and therefore are perhaps more serviceable for the Victory orchard.

Yellow Transparent is one of best apple varieties for home use. It comes into production at an early age, and averages approximately only 65 days from full bloom to first picking, usually ripening about the middle of July. This variety can also be grown with fewer applications of spray material than most varieties.

The accompanying Garden-Graph charts the average number of days from full bloom to first picking of a number of recommended varieties. Study of this chart will enable one to select varieties which will come into bearing at early, medium and late periods.

Where winter varieties are desired, the following are suggested, although, of course, throughout the country there are sectional preferences: McIntosh, Grimes Golden, Jonathan, Red Delicious and Golden Delicious, Rome Beauty and Stayman.

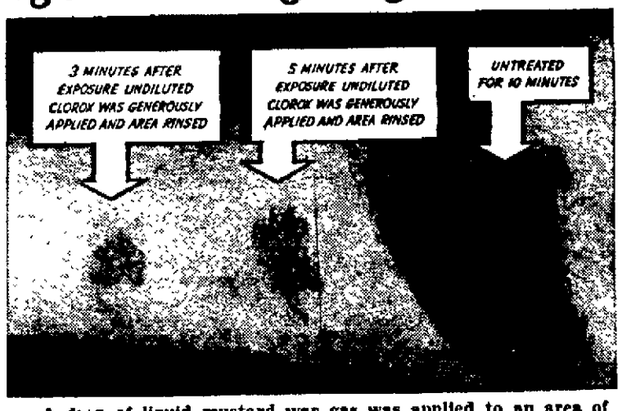
Clorox Recognized as Effective Agent In Fighting War Gas



3 MINUTES AFTER EXPOSURE UNDILUTED CLOROX WAS GENEROUSLY APPLIED AND AREA RINSED
5 MINUTES AFTER EXPOSURE UNDILUTED CLOROX WAS GENEROUSLY APPLIED AND AREA RINSED
UNTREATED FOR 10 MINUTES

A drop of liquid mustard war gas was applied to an area of about ¼ inch at each of the three spots indicated by arrows. Photo taken 2½ days later, revealing the danger of delay in treatment.

Clorox, the familiar bleach and household disinfectant used in millions of homes, is recognized by scientists as a most effective agent for neutralizing liquid mustard and Lewisite war gases.

Extensive tests, including many on human subjects, have been made by Clorox technicians, by university scientists and by independent research chemists, conclusively proving the value of Clorox for this purpose. These tests show that it is essential to render immediate treatment in case of liquid gas contamination. There should be no delay for every second counts.

The importance of the time element is vividly illustrated by the accompanying photograph.

Next in importance is the speed of the detoxifying agent in neutralizing liquid gas. Clorox proves most effective due to the fact that it is free from caustic which permits a much faster action than when caustic is present.

In addition to its speedy action, the purity, stability and high strength of Clorox are important factors in its superiority.

The photograph shows various steps in the treatment of liquid gas and what happens when no treatment or delayed treatment is given.

Allies Display Mounting Strength

THIS WEEK'S war news has been so "good," from the Allied viewpoint, that there is danger of it being interpreted by some people as meaning that the war is nearing an end—which is far from a safe conclusion based on accomplishments thus far.

What has been proved, however, is that increasing Allied strength is now being made effective against the enemy and that, eventually, the Axis powers will be beaten into the "unconditional surrender" demanded by the United Nations.

Russian victories at Orel and Belgorod, and the British capture of Catania have a significance greater than their immediate military value. These achievements demonstrate to both the Allied and Axis nations that Great Britain, the United States and Russia have developed sufficient striking power to successfully combat the best that the enemy can put in the field—and that air supremacy of the Allies has been clearly shown.

The fall of Catania leaves Messina as the only place for Axis resistance in Sicily, thus bringing Allied forces into position for early landing on the Italian mainland, if necessary, and also opening the way for intensification of bombing operations against Italy, in the event of continued refusal of that stricken country to surrender.

Events in Russia, with Soviet forces strongly on the offensive, evidence waning strength of Hitler's armies now pitted against the Russians, with air weakness especially obvious.

German air losses in North Africa, Sicily and northwestern Europe, coupled with Allied bombardment of plane production facilities, are beginning to show in reduced ability to combat attacks or to conduct effective air offensives, such as devastated English cities in the early stages of the war.

Heartening news also came from General MacArthur yesterday, to the effect that occupation of Munda, strategic airbase on New Guinea island, had been completed, after more than a month of fierce struggle by the defending Japanese.

As summarized by J. C. Oestreicher, foreign editor of the International News Service:

"Achievements of General MacArthur since the end of June have been tremendous. The Allies now are fast reaching a position to compel the Japanese, in ensuing months, to curl up their tentacles behind the steel wall of garrisons surrounding their immediate home islands.

"Australia has been relieved entirely of danger of invasion and Allied strength in men, ships and planes is mounting daily.

"The Allied supply line to Australia and New Zealand is safeguarded. Barring totally unforeseen developments—the Japanese can never again threaten to cut this vitally important artery of warfare."

Such reports mark a vast change from the weakness shown during those dark days and months following Pearl Harbor, when Bataan, Wake Island and Corregidor defenders were fighting against fearful odds.

This change has been made possible, in large part, by American fighting men, backed by American industrial WORKERS. Strikers have caused some delays in production of war materials, thus lengthening the war, but the predominance of loyal workers has thus far been sufficient to show what CAN be done when all Americans finally realize the importance of individual participation in the national war program.

Between Landlords and Tenants

THE PRESIDENT of the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America suggests that it might be a good thing for landlords to give tenants itemized bills. About 55 per cent of American families rent homes or apartments. Some of these rent instead of buying because their business requires them to be flexible about shelter, or because they are young and just starting, or old and through with the care of big houses. There will always be many families which, for some reason, need to rent.

Some, however, are scared out of home-owning by the idea of taxes. These people, the expert believes, as well as other tenants, ought to know that they are already paying taxes in the form of rent. He thinks they would be interested in keeping realty taxes down if they knew more about them.

Tenants might be more reasonable in demands and more contented with improvements made if they knew regularly what the owner had to spend for upkeep. It's not likely to be the experienced owner of many suites or houses, who spends a regular percentage for paper and paint, and a regular percentage for permanent improvement, who has trouble with tenants. It's not the informed tenant, who knows what to expect, who has trouble with his landlord. It's a fringe of inexperienced landlords and tenants, both of whom expect too much, who get into unpleasant rows. Making itemized bills might help to enlighten both sides.

Where Knowledge May Save Life

THREE WORDS must be kept in mind when artificial respiration is called for, according to Dr. Gordon Bates of the Health League of Canada. They are Prompt, Adequate, Prolonged. In too many cases, he maintains, victims die because of the lack of one or more of these qualities as applied to respiration by onlookers.

Aid must be given quickly, as first consideration, and given right. One point to note is that sometimes a small quantity of water enters the windpipe, which immediately causes a reflex closure of the larynx. Lifting the body gently from the waist to allow the water to drain from the lungs and stomach is recommended. Then place it prone with the head and chest lower than the rest if possible. The old way of putting it over a barrel is good, but a pile of coats will do. Seeing that the tongue is held forward may prevent throat spasm.

Then begin the artificial respiration—and keep at it. Let helpers relieve each other at intervals, taking care that movements do not stop while one person takes another's place. Victims have been revived after two or more hours of this, so do not give up a case as hopeless after a few minutes or even an hour.

Interesting, at that, to have Drew Pearson's "Merry-Go-Round" beat Eleanor's "My Day" to the announcement that the Hopkinses are planning to move out of the White House.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and be on the lookout for intoxicated speeders.

RIGHT BACK AT HIM

Future of Italy Remains Clouded As Fear of Hitler Blocks Peace

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

OLD MARSHAL BADOGLIO is attempting some mighty risky juggling with the throne of Italy in his efforts to divert at one and the same time the attention of the Allies, who demand unconditional surrender forthwith, and the Germans, who are said to threaten reprisals if he throws up the sponge.

The Italian public wants peace. Fiery demonstrations in many sections of the country show that the people are in that frame of mind which bodes no good for anyone who stands between them and the return to normal for which they so long have yearned. The fact that Badoglio is keeping the lid on by a vigorous display of force doesn't alter that fact.

Now it was King Vittorio Emanuele who, willingly or otherwise, named Badoglio chief of state, with dictatorial powers, when Mussolini collapsed the other day. That inevitably must link the little monarch in the minds of his subjects with any fresh misfortune which may come to them because of the marshal's failure to accept the Allied terms, thus inviting bombing and invasion.

Badoglio may see the writing on the wall and surrender If he persists in playing the Hitlerian games, however, and so condemns his unfortunate country to the horrors of further war, he may precipitate an ultimate political change with far reaching consequences.

Badoglio or no Badoglio, the Allies are going to take over Italy. Then in due course, when the fires of war have died away in Europe, the people of the country will be permitted to choose the form of government under which they wish to live—so long as it isn't Fascist or Nazi. The United Nations have promised this to the Axis countries.

WILL the people want to retain a king who contributed to their suffering? Will they even want to keep the monarchy? Only time can answer those momentous questions. However, we are bound to note that during the recent days of crisis political elements in various parts of the country have been demonstrating in favor of other forms of government.

Among the demonstrants are said to be Communists. One would indeed be short of memory to forget that Mussolini pounded Fascism for the avowed purpose of uprooting Bolshevism in Italy, and one would be shortsighted not to see that Communism has taken on strength from the great victories of the Red army.

Emanuele fell in public esteem after Mussolini came to power. Since the war, however, he has seemed to come into his own again, as the duce lost favor with a disillusioned populace. Italians were looking to their king for leadership.

When Mussolini failed his country in the crisis which brought his downfall, Emanuele could have been the man of the hour. I believe that if he had mounted his charger and ridden through the streets of Rome as champion of his subjects, he would have been the hero of the country. But he passed the job to Badoglio, and stayed at home in his palace.

ALL THIS doesn't necessarily predict the fall of the monarchy, of course. Still, one would think that Emanuele will be very lucky if he himself doesn't slip from his golden throne. If the monarchy weathers the present storm, it wouldn't be surprising to see Crown Prince Umberto take over from his father.

Umberto is 39—a tall, erect figure who is the Italian ideal of a soldier. He has had much training both in afafirs of state and in military matters. He is married to beautiful Princess Maria Jose, sister of the king of the Belgians, and they have a son and four daughters.

There was a time when Italy wasn't overly pleased with Umberto. Those were the days when youthful indiscretions shocked the more sober minded of his father's subjects.

The crown prince outgrew his penchant for the hot-spots, though, and developed both stability and capability. As a result he has stood well with the public, and might make an acceptable king—if the monarchy lives.

Listen World! By ELSIE ROBINSON

Equality at Work

WE TALKED recently about Russia—that mysterious land which most of us cannot as yet visualize accurately, and James E. Brown's strong, simple book, "Russia Fights" (Scribner) which at last makes it real for the most bewildered American. The book that gives you Russia As Is.

There wasn't space in one column, nor would there be in 20, to give you the plain facts with which Mr. Brown dispels our fantastic misconceptions of our great fighting ally. But here are some details which may jolt you into realization of the truth. For instance, the place which women occupy in modern Russia.

DID YOU KNOW THAT MORE THAN SEVENTY PER CENT OF THE WORKERS IN SOVIET INDUSTRY ARE WOMEN?

This does not include women in lighter jobs—nurses, cooks, clerks, or even pilots of transport planes. It deals only with the women who handle the heaviest defense labor, women who are doing what only the huskiest stevedore would do or attempt in America. And, at the same time, maintaining radiant health and bearing and nursing the next generation.

Here's one picture from Mr. Brown's book. Try to place it in America.

"I first saw Soviet women doing manual labor in May, 1937, when the train on which I was traveling crossed the frontier from Poland. I happened to look out of the window at a parallel strip of track which was being repaired. Barefoot women wearing faded cotton dresses and with kerchiefs tied around their heads were carrying railroad ties on their shoulders, swinging pick axes and pushing wheelbarrows. They were browned and weather beaten, husky, peasant types, strong as men; I was surprised to see women performing such heavy manual labor, but my fellow passengers showed so little interest that I realized it must have been a familiar sight and later I became accustomed to it myself. Women shoveled the snow from Moscow streets, they were carpenters and builders, and it was common to see thousands engaged in digging the new subway, clumping home from work in the heavy boots worn in the tunnels.

"Such equality in Russia had more than a political connotation; women were guaranteed equality of opportunities, but they also had to accept the responsibilities that went with their new privileges. They might aspire to the highest positions, but they could also be ditch diggers."

AND THIS, remember, is the conclusion of a man who had been familiar with the Russian scene for seven years. Nor does the conclusion apply merely to the "dumb peasant." Women do plenty more than dig ditches and make railroads in Russia. They are in the front line fighting with their comrades, bearing the same hardships without privileges or exemptions.

"There are," says Mr. Brown, "thousands of feminine judges, lawyers, writers and doctors, leaders in their own communities, who had also risen to their positions long before the war. Women engineers and conductors on trains, for example, were not employed merely as a result of military necessity; they were accepted as a matter of course. Education opportunities would be seized by women as enthusiastically as by men; Russian girls revealed enormous eagerness and hunger for knowledge."

That eagerness for knowledge is one of the most astounding things in the Russian picture as every authority testifies. The typical Russian is not a dumb dolt. However it may humiliate us to admit it, he shames our own students. The hungry Russian youngsters—and he often is hungry—leaps at knowledge more eagerly than he does at bread. He is studious beyond the comprehension of any American adolescent although he takes an eager interest in American jive and wants to know if you have seen Clark Gable or Lana Turner.

And that's only part of the picture. Stick around and I'll tell you some more. We Americans need it.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Draft Reaches Head of Families, Will Call Fathers to Fill Ranks

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

APPROXIMATELY 6,500,000 married men with pre-Pearl Harbor children are now classified 3-A. Before the next year some 300,000 of these will be inducted into the armed forces, starting October 1. In 1944 additional thousands will go—depending on the extent of casualties requiring replacements to keep the U. S. army and navy at its peak level of 11,300,000 men.

Such was the gist of what War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt disclosed when during the week he told selective service boards to start drafting family men between 18 and 37 on Oct. 1.

For these fathers he set a period to prolonged uncertainty. Earlier in the year they had expected to be called by July 1.

The factor which cannot be gauged is the number of casualties to come. If fighting becomes heavy in Europe, more and more fathers will have to go. If it is light, the number of youths reaching 18 every month may largely meet replacement requirements.

Childless Men First.

To get 300,000 family men into uniform, it is estimated that 450,000 men will be sent to induction centers. Married men still in civilian life average 30.5 years of age, and a relatively high rejection rate is expected.

McNutt said: "Fathers will be inducted after October 1 only to the extent necessary to supplement the supply of single men, men with collateral dependents only, and married men without children who become available each month and are not eligible for occupational deferment. Those fathers who are key men in agriculture or essential industry or whose induction would cause severe hardship for their families will be deferred."

During the last quarter of this year, approximately 625,000 men will be inducted, but 150,000 will be youths newly turned 18 and and another 175,000 will be non-fathers.

The calling of fathers will be according to their draft order numbers, it was announced, regardless of the number or age of their children. But some congressmen have said they will try to change this detail.

The armed forces now have about 9,500,000 of the 10,800,000 men and women they will have by the end of the year and the 11,300,000 they will have by July, 1944. August and September quotas total 550,000. There are 22,000,000 draft registrants age 18-through-37, but more than half of them have been taken or rejected.

Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

HELPING EACH OTHER

AN INTERESTING member of an implement firm inquired of me three years ago at the fair, "What improvements would you suggest on our new tractor plow?"

I admired the sturdy, well-built frame and plows, their balance, their ease of tripping and recovery as a field man demonstrated it on a piece of land south of where we stood.

"But that is level land," I said. "And you have no trash upon the sod. Your demonstration is under ideal conditions. What will it do on hills and up and down small hollows? On stony land, or surface littered with heavy weeds or tangled cornstalks?"

And did he resent my words—who was a total stranger to him? No, he said it was a good point worth considering, and thanked me. Then I told him where I had had trouble with a similar implement under adverse conditions, and he wrote something in a notebook.

He had a binder, a mower, a combine and a corn picker on display. I noticed he questioned other farmers who showed interest in mowers or tractors or combines—and used the same notebook freely. I noticed that farmers lingered about his tent, and many gave orders for machinery to be delivered in the spring.

When I returned, sometime later, he smiled a greeting and shook my hand. "Do you know you farmers around here have taught me something?"

"What was that?" I wondered.

"I've learned that the men who use the machinery can test our product better than our engineers. They and you are strangers, but I'm going to see that you get acquainted. Our factory laboratory, from now on, will be right out on the worst fields the farmers own. If you can raise better crops and more stock, you'll have more money to buy our goods—goods that you'll have helped us to make better."

With this conversation freshly in mind, he handed me from a large stack, the most keenly illustrated pamphlet on modern farming that I ever saw. It even discussed the esthetic and moral values of agriculture, as a way of life.

"We have spent a good many dollars in special research on that booklet," he said.

"And now you are giving it away?"

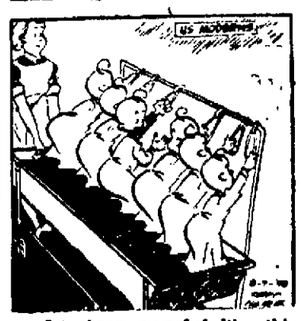
"Yes -- to every intelligent farmer, who is interested. Their suggestions have helped us and we hope that our ideas will help them."

LIFE'S LIKE THAT



"It's been crowded like this since last month!"

At Home

War Labor Needs.

War manpower commission chiefs convened to discuss the tightening labor situation—particularly on the west coast. Other regions, it was announced, already were being given quotas on the number of workers they must provide for transfer to west coast war industries.

Simultaneously a sharp warning against lagging war production came from the war labor board. It was stated that production has fallen behind schedule approximately $300,000,000 in the last three months.

In Washington it was predicted that the draft-fathers order would have the effect of sending many men from non-essential into essential work, thus help solve manpower problems.

Winged Death.

Several thousand spectators, mindful of the fact that a cargo glider recently crossed the Atlantic in tow, gathered at a St. Louis airfield for a public demonstration.

The army glider, previously tested, was designed to carry 15 troops. Into it filed ten prominent civilian and military passengers—none of whom came out alive.

Towed by plane, the glider took off in good order. Spectators cheered as it sailed high above the field, turned for another transit. Then women screamed and fainted; men stared in horror. For, at an altitude of 1,500 feet, directly over the field, the glider seemed to fall apart. Both wings dropped away, and the fuselage with its human cargo plummeted to earth.

Among the ten victims was St. Louis' Mayor William Dee Becker.

Federal Saving.

The renegotiation of war contracts has saved $3,555,174,000 for the war and navy departments and the maritime commission in the first 14 months of operation, a report made public during the week revealed.

It stated that the savings were effected through "commitments for the elimination of excess profits," further emphasized that the "savings secured through lower prices in successive contracts are undoubtedly many times greater" than the 3½-billion-dollar figure.

At the end of June, the report revealed, 3,611 renegotiation cases had been settled—2,894 by the army; 626 by the navy; 91 by the maritime commission.

Abroad

Orel 'Disengagement.'

"In the disengagement movements which have been carried out," Berlin blandly broadcast, certain territory had to be given up but nothing fell into Soviet hands undamaged." Berlin said that new defenses behind Orel "will stand up to all future Soviet attacks."

Thus did Berlin prepare the home folks for the loss of Orel on Thursday.

Possibly as a diversion the Germans launched an attack in force in the Donets Basin to the south. Voroshilovgrad was the objective and high German casualties resulted.

Advance In Sicily.

The Axis' famous Mt. Etna line in Sicily cracked before renewed drives by American and Canadian forces as Italy's breathing spell ended. Catania fell to the Allied forces Thursday.

Epic was the capture by Americans of "Bloody Ridge" before San Stefano. Twice Gen. Patton's men had been beaten back by unbearable fire from the natural rock-studded fortress, but the third time they swept to the crest over hundreds of German corpses.

Officers said that "Bloody Ridge" was comparable to the seizing of Hill 609 in Tunisia, the fall of which paved the way for the capture of Mateur at the end of the campaign.

Bomb Assault.

Germans at home were having their own troubles. In ten days Hamburg suffered eight devastating air raids which made it the most-bombed city on earth. More than 10,000 tons of explosives had reduced its quays, factories and business establishments to rubble. The civil population was evacuated and horrifying stories reached Sweden of as many as 200,000 dead. The British called this an exaggeration.

Far to the eastward Allied fliers struck at the Rumanian oil fields, Hitler's chief source of supply. Nearly 200 Liberator bombers roared from Middle East bases in a low-level raid. Seven planes landed in Turkey and were interned. Ankara heard that a great fire raged in the entire area of Ploesti, heart of the Rumanian fields. Witnesses estimated the region's production had been cut in half.

'No Surrender' Policy.

In the month since Americans landed on Rendova Island, just south of Munda airfield, the Japanese have lost in the Solomon's area 345 planes, five or six cruisers and some 13 destroyers sunk—far more than U. S. losses.

But while American troops in Sicily have advanced scores of miles, taken prisoners by the thousands, the Japanese around Munda have held the invaders down to a yard-by-yard advance.

Though trapped, the Japanese soldiers literally fight to the death, and this difference has largely accounted for the variation in pace of the two campaigns.

During the week American troops smashed to the east end of the Munda airbase, faced the enemy's main defense line. This climaxed a savage attack with tanks and flame-throwers in which the Americans fought their way through the jungle against last-ditch, cave-entrenched Japanese fighters.

Slipping Satellites.

Politically, Axis defeats have unsettled satellite nations. Albanians are on the warpath again. More than 500 Italians were killed there in the past two months.

Hungary and Bulgaria are trying to hedge against a German defeat. Recently the Hungarian government hinted that it might be willing to return portions of Slovenia which Hitler gave it. King Boris of Bulgaria, faced with peace demonstrations, has sought to pin on Premier Filov the blame for dragging the country into the war.

Rumania, too, is upset. She lost about 500,000 men in Russian fighting.

Quotes

Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war: "We have virtually finished recruiting and are engaged in training the largest and best-trained army the United States has even sent beyond its waters."

Senator Byrd, of Virginia: "I think it is entirely inconsistent for the treasury to propose its enormous tax increase plan without including a sales tax. If the treasury is willing to co-operate with the two committees of congress and incorporate a sales tax, we can raise the needed money."

In Short

Speeded: At 780 miles an hour—fast as sound—U. S. Lt. Col. Cass Hough of Plymouth, Mich., while test diving a P-38 Lightning near London.

Returned: After a 45,000-mile trip during which he visited American troops abroad, and the Vatican, Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York.

Born: At Chicago to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Snite, jr., of iron lung fame, a daughter—their second.

Escaped: From a Canadian prison camp, German airman Lt. Peter Krug whose previous escape resulted in the conviction of Detroiter Max Stephan for treason.

Timely Editorial

Those "Good Old Days."

The OPA office in Boston issued this statement recently to console people who may feel that rationing and price restrictions are making life too tough these days:

"Our ancestors got along without sugar until the thirteenth century, without coal until the fourteenth century, without buttered bread until the fifteenth century, without potatoes until the sixteenth century, without coffee until the seventeenth century, without matches until the eighteenth century and without gasoline until the nineteenth."

Whether the good old days were good or bad seems to depend a great deal on what one is trying to prove, doesn't it?—Columbus Ditspatch.

YANKS DEFEAT GERMANS IN FIERCE BATTLE

Take Troina to Force Nazis Back From Mt. Etna; Captive Total Now 125,000.

traps. Nine bridges were blown up in the path of Americans advancing against stubborn opposition on the north coast near Caronia, east of San Stefano.

Troina, atop a 3,600-foot peak, fell after a weeklong siege marked by the fiercest fighting since Tunisia and its capture opened the way for a rapid American drive toward Bronte, 13 air miles to the east, on the highway looping around the western slopes of Mt. Etna.

The peak was held by a German suicide squad force of 1,500 who held out against terrific 100-gun artillery barrages and air raids by as many as 70 dive-bombers at a time. Key positions on its approaches changed hands several times in a single day in the see-saw battle that preceded its fall.

With American forces surging toward Bronte, Axis armies making a fighting retreat up the Mt. Etna road from as far south as Belpasso, seven miles northwest of Catania, were faced with an imminent decision to break off contact and flee post-haste for Messina or risk death or capture.

The retreating Axis forces were being subjected to a terrific bombardment by both Allied air fleets and Anglo-American warships, as well as by artillery batteries.

Night bombers divided their attention between Axis invasion ships massing in Messina harbor and Naples, which was blasted for the fifth time in six days last night.

Ustica, a tiny island which Premier Mussolini used as a place of banishment for political opponents, was occupied by combined U. S. naval and military forces Thursday and the garrison of 100 Italian soldiers and sailors made prisoner. All Germans left the island July 11.

Two hundred and sixteen Italian civil prisoners and a guard were found on the island, in addition to 1,100 civilians, who were destitute and without water. Many were ill with malaria.

American destroyers, meantime, wetre credited with sinking one heavily-laden enemy lighter and one of two escorting torpedo boats south of Lipari Island off the Sicilian north coast Tuesday night.

Allied fighter-bombers, joining in the offensive against Axis shipping in Sicilian waters, sank 21 berges and four other small vessels Thursday night, a communique said.

The communique reported that American destroyers and motor torpedo boats have in the past few nights driven as far east as the Gulf of Gioia on the west coast of the Italian toe without meeting enemy traffic.

British naval forces concentrated their bombardments on the Sicilian east coast road near Taormina, 28 miles south of Messina, where previous shellings loosed landslides that completely blocked that vital highway.

All enemy sea traffic has ceased in this area, too, the communique said, and mine sweepers have begun clearing a channel into Catania, the big east coast port which fell to the British Thursday.

Allied air forces, from Flying Fortresses to single-engined fighter-bombers, pressed an all-out offensive against roads and communications in the Messina area and against the highway junctions of Randazzo and Gesso to the southwest and west respectively, through which retreating Italo-German armies must pass.

Enemy transport also was attacked in southern Italy, while the Naples raiders last night concentrated on the docks and railway communications.

Two enemy planes were shot down during the 24 hours ended last night and eight Allied planes were lost.

(An Italian communique broadcast by the Rome radio said Allied raids on Naples, Messina and places in Salerno and Cosenza provinces of southern Italy had caused only slight damage.)

British four-engined Liberator and Halifax heavy bombers from the middle-eastern command bombed San Giovanni, Italian mainland ferry terminus across a narrow strait from Messina, Friday night and started big fires near the terminus building and northwest of the railway station. Other fires were observed among railway sidings south of the harbor. All planes returned safely.

PETRILLO'S NEW OFFER SCORNED

Broadcasters Tell Union Boss They Haven't Suffered.

NEW YORK—(INS)—James C. Petrillo's newest offer to radio officials in settlement of the ban on recordings was rejected today as radio men explained they had not suffered financially by the prohibition.

Petrillo wanted $18,000,000 paid to the American Federation of Musicians over a period of five years in exchange for cooperation with the recording companies to obtain new copyright legislation, which, presumably would allow both company and recording artist to collect fees from radio stations using the discs.

ARMY SCHOOL HAS 'MUSEUM' OF AXIS BOMBS

Missiles Range From Huge Block-Busters To Hand Grenades.

(By United Press)

ABERDEEN PROVING GROUNDS, Md.—An exhibition of Japanese, Italian and German handicraft, gruesome enough to merit a place in Mme. Taussard's wax chamber of horrors, forms a unique museum here.

The museum was opened recently at the army's bomb disposal school to allow American officers to familiarize themselves with enemy bombs which their assignment will require them to meet later under less auspicious circumstances.

These men are charged with safety disposing of enemy missiles which fail to explode but provide a constant threat to personnel and installations so long as they remain in the ground.

The bombs, ranging from two-ton block busters to handy little "potato-masher" grenades, are flown back from the fighting fronts in every theater of war.

Instead of delicate Japanese prints, this museum presents ugly "screamer" bombs, scarred from their impact with the earth of Guadalcanal, and huge Italian "parachute" missiles rather than the works of Michelangelo.

The exhibits are constantly changing as the enemy's creative ingenuity molds new designs for death-dealing weapons; the army likes to keep its men posted.

It is easy to tell which bombs failed to explode through the inefficiency of some enemy munitions worker and those which never were put to their intended use because of the efficiency of the American armed forces.

The captured bombs are shiny and new; the unexploded bombs are twisted and blackened.

One part of the gallery illustrates that death-dealing, tank-busting bombs don't have to be ugly. With the right touch here and there, the Italians demonstrate that projectiles can be downright pretty.

One such bomb is known as "the butterfly" because it is always painted in bright colors and opens up into a sort of pair of wings to slow its descent.

Another is a green-tinted affair about the size, weight and shape of a large pineapple which, it is reported, has almost the same deadliness of our bazooka in dealing with tanks.

Then there's the artistic booby trap perfected by Mussolini's men. It is a large grenade with four spools of thread, each of different color, which can be used as a booby trap, on almost any type of terrain.

The threads can blend with the desert sand, the jungle verdure, rocky crags or thickly-wooded areas. You merely pull the proper string out and wait for somebody to trip over it.

fracture of the left arm and it was necessary to amputate at the shoulder. The boy's condition today was reported "fair."

The Coulter boy had been living with his sister, Mrs. Helen Ridenour, Perrysville R. D. 2.

Another passenger in the Rush car suffered back injuries and is confined to Galion hospital. She is Lois Knipp, 249 West Fifth street. Her condition this morning was reported "good." Margaret Porter, also of 249 West Fifth street, a fourth passenger in the Rush car, escaped with cuts and bruises and was treated at the hospital.

Driver of the other car involved in the accident was Eugene Crim, Galion R. D. 3, who escaped injury. Also in the Crim car were Bernice Whiteamire, Galion; Virginia Stoneburner, Iberia. All three suffered minor injuries and were released from the hospital after treatment.

The Greyhound bus was carrying 35 passengers at the time of the accident, none of whom were injured. Driver of the bus was Edward M. King, Elida.

According to state highway patrolmen, who investigated, the car driven by Coulter (owned by Rush) was following the bus traveling east. Coulter, officers said, passed the bus and came into direct line with the car driven by Crim, traveling east. Coulter attempted to swing out of Crim's path and sideswiped the bus and then collided head-on with Crim's car.

Both cars were considerably damaged. The bus was only slightly damaged.

TWO MOTORISTS SIGN WAIVERS

Driver Arrested for Speeding on U. S. Route 42.

Two motorists signed waivers and posted bond in Ashland police court yesterday on charges of speeding and another motorist was cited into Mansfield municipal court Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. for the same violation, state patrolmen and city police reported this morning.

Harry F. Funk, Cleveland, and Morris J. Barton, Peninsula, both posted $16 in the Ashland court. Both were arrested on U. S. Route 42. James R. Patton, Shiloh R. D. 2, arrested last night on South Main street on a speeding charge, was scheduled to appear in municipal court Wednesday at 1:30 p. m.

FIRST CHURCH OF GOD

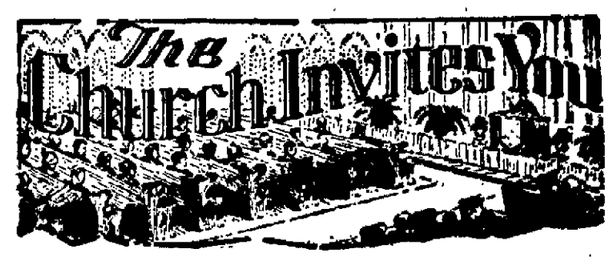
Sunday's services will conclude the revival with Rev. Cyrus V. Wells of Zanesville, as the guest speaker, for both the morning and evening services. The Gospel Trio, formerly of Zanesville, will bring favorite gospel songs at each service.

At 2:30 p. m. Sunday Rev. Wells and the pastor, Rev. Helen Wright will conduct a baptismal service at Swigart Lake on Vanderbilt road. Immediately following this service the ordinance of the church will be observed at the church building on West Third street.



"Leave it to the ministers, and soon the church will die. Leave it to the women folk; the young will pass it by. The church is all that lifts us from the coarse and selfish mob, and the church that is to prosper needs the layman on the job."
Why not accept the invitation to COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?
—D. Carl Yoder.

There are signs in Russia of the beginning of a new day for the church. Literature is now produced filled with fine pictures of cathedrals and churches, church dignitaries, and documents relating to the life of the church there.

Regardless of the heavy financial toll in London, giving has gone up in all the churches except those in Scotland.

One of the Nazi newspapers in Belgium has accused the ministers of holding secret meetings to encourage the resistance of workers conscripted for war work in Germany. In view of this some ministers have advised the young people not to attend church services to avoid being arrested, but in spite of this, the church attendance is increasing.

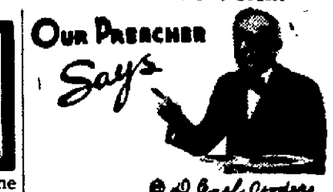
"The secretary of the Dutch Reformed church in Holland signed release from hostage camps, but 50 pastors remain in custody."

The American Luheran church has gone on record as affirming that "the church cannot uphold the conscientious objector who is subject to draft and refuses to register or to tender any service to the nation in its time of need."

The Rev. Dr. Roy A. Burkhart, pastor of the Columbus, Ohio, First Community Church, in an address to the Washington, D. C., Ministerial Union, charged that American high schools and colleges are "infected with the insidious disease of fraternities and sororities," and warned that the "exclusiveness" characteristics of such groups is contrary to the American democratic way of life.

The first Bible printed in America was in the language of the Algonquin Indians. John Eliot, the Indian Missionary, was the translator, and the work was finished and printed in 1663. It was not until 1777 that a part of the Bible was printed in English in North America, and it was not until five years later the whole Bible was printed on this continent, the copy having been issued in Philadelphia. The Scotch publisher, it is said, lost $15,000 on the venture.

Of all the evil spirits, insincerity is the most dangerous.—Froude.



If all the people were bad there would be no hypocrites. The fact that there are hypocrites in business, in politics, in social organizations, and in the church proves there are men of genuine character in the world. It is not a question of whether there are hypocrites but whether you and I are genuine or counterfeit. To be true and loyal to high ideals makes for character which gives occasion for counterfeits.

No Keeping Down a Good Man

Remember the shark. You want to go into the water but you are afraid of the shark. Maybe there is no shark, and you are safe. If there is a shark and you go in, maybe he no see you and you are safe. If there is a shark and you go in, maybe he be full already, or he no like you, so he let you alone, and you are safe. If there is a shark and you go in, and he see you, and he not full already, and he like you, and he come for you, and he may miss you, then you are safe again. MISS PAULINE STUDER WEDS N. J. ZIEGLER

Formal Ceremony Read This Morning at St. Peter's Catholic Church; Reception and Dinner for Ninety Held Today.

BEFORE an altar banked with palms and two large arrangements of gladioli, in the pastel shades, the nuptial vows were exchanged for Miss Pauline M. Studer, 85 Waring avenue, and Nicholas J. Ziegler, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ziegler, 260 Grace street, this morning at 8:15 at the St. Peter's Catholic church.

Father Shank officiated for the formal service at which time the bride's father, Thomas Studer of Bloomville, gave her in marriage.

She wore a formal wedding gown of white slipper satin made with long tight sleeves and a shirred tight fitted bodice. The only trim on the gown was the buttons down the back and on the sleeves. The very full skirt fell into a long train. She wore jewelry which was the gift of the bridegroom. Her bouquet was a semi-Colonial arrangement of white glads and white roses. A full circular fingertip length illusion veil was held in place by orange blossoms and worn virgin style.

Miss Freda Studer, of Bloomville, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore an alure pink slipper satin and net gown, made with a squared sheer net yoke with high round neckline, short sleeves and a bodice of slipper satin to which was attached a double full net skirt. Completing her costume was a large net bonet in turpuoise with long velvet streamers falling from the back.

Her bouquet was semi-Colonial style of deep purple glads and Edith Wilkie roses. Mrs. Studer and Mrs. Ziegler, mothers of the young couple, wore sheer street length frocks and corsages of gardenias.

Frank Herold, a close friend of the groom, was best man. Ushering the guests to their seats were Peter Zeides, uncle of the bridegroom, and Mathias Metsch, a close friend.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the bridal party will receive friends and relatives at a reception at the Sons of Herman hall, Orange street. Dinner will be served for 90 guests. The bridal table will be decorated with a five tiered wedding cake topped with miniature bride and groom.

Later in the day the young couple will leave for a short wedding trip. For traveling the bride will wear a semi-tailored frock of Vernon green gaberdine with brown accessories.

They will reside at 85 Waring avenue upon their return. The bride was graduated from Lykens high school and is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. Mr. Ziegler, a graduate of Springfield township high school, is employed at the Tappan Stove company.

Out-of-town guests in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lucas and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Holcker, all of Cleveland.

HALSEY SEES 'JAPAN BATTLE'

Predicts Development of War In Pacific as Yanks Capitalize on Munda.

24 hours after American occupation of Munda, on New Georgia island, where the Yanks were mopping up isolated Japanese remnants and cleaning out Bairoko harbor, 10 miles north of Munda, where a small garrison is surrounded.

It was indicated that the Americans would swiftly rebuild the bomb-battered Munda air base and use it for operations against Santa Isabel to the east, Kolombangara and Vella Lavella in the New Georgia group to the north, and Bougainville, in the northern Solomons.

A dispatch by Frank Tremaine, United Press correspondent at South Pacific headquarters, said Japanese positions on these islands may be neutralized by the seizure of Munda but that an enemy garrison of 5,000 may have been left for a suicide action on Kolombangara just across Kula Gulf from New Georgia.

A troop-carrying barge was destroyed by an Allied plane off Vella Lavella and Catalinas strafed enemy soldiers struggling in the water. Sixteen American Corsair fighter planes operating over Bougainville shot down seven of 30 enemy planes in a series of dogfights with a loss of one.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, overall commander of South Pacific operations, sent his congratulations to Adm. William F. Halsey, jr., commander in the Solomons area, for the conquest of Munda, first base to fall to troops put on the offensive 39 days ago.

(The British radio reported, quoting a Southwest Pacific correspondent, said it was unlikely that many of the 5,000-man Japanese garrison at Munda escaped a blockade around New Georgia by Allied naval craft.)

The victory extended the eastern arm of a long pincers apparently aimed at Rabaul, big Japanese base on New Britain island above New Guinea. The other arm was developing with the slow jungle campaign through New Guinea toward Salamaua, enemy stronghold on the northeast coast.

The whole campaign was expected to be slow due to the type of terrain in the jungle islands. Tremaine said the Japanese thought themselves secure behind the jungles and deep defenses of their Munda air base.

Annual Picnic Held for Unit

Thirty-two were present Friday evening for the annual picnic for members of the Lucretia Hedges society, Unit Six, of the First Methodist church. The supper was served at North Lake park after which a short business session was held followed by a social hour.

The committee in charge of arrangements was composed of Mrs. Howard Miller, chairman, Mrs. Clyde Vail, Mrs. C. C. Pollock, Mrs. Catherine Butler and Mrs. Forest Goldsmith. The next meeting will be held Sept. 3 at the church.

MODES of the MOMENT

By Dorothy Roe

BODY BASIC, campus style. This bright student at Sarah Lawrence college in Bronxville, N. Y., wears one of the season's pets, a streamlined classic in brown and white checked wool, with Chinese feeling in round neckline and side stripes in brown grosgrain.

REQUIRED CREDITS: Jumpers and bow-ties are campus "musts." Left, one-piece jumper dress in black and brick-colored jersey. Right, classic red and gray wool plaid, with gray bowtie. Both New York designs.

GABARDINE GADABOUT—Here's a dress that will be the backbone of many a college wardrobe. It is natural color gabardine cut in classic shirtwaist style, with shirt collar, "push-up" length sleeves. Bodice has brass buttons, skirt has fly closing.

New Clothes Are Used for Many Items

NEW YORK—Nowadays a report on fashion doings has the experimental flavor of a new ration dish. One never knows what to expect next. A spokesman for the cotton industry recently announced a shortage of diapers because many of the looms making this baby essential are now making raincoats.

War babies, nevertheless, score an extra point in the recent announcement that soon there will be available for their best dresses, a fine cotton balloon cloth originally prepared for barrage balloons, which is now available for infant requirements. There is every reason to believe that future babies, especially post-war infants will fare well.

Fortisan, extra strong yarn of Celanese now doing war service, makes a super-fine fabric of exquisitely dull lustre in pure white of the quality mothers have always sought for baptism ceremonies and special occasions. Post-war fabric of Fortisan will be especially desirable for the first infant clothes that are destined to be laid away and preserved as loving memories.

The recent order to the millinery trade that brims shall not be more than 48 inches in circumference is no challenge to designers of hats, most of whom already cut the circumference to saucer and cupcake sizes. Because looms are making mosquito nets for the soldiers, a yard of veiling is the limit allowed for mylady's best bonnet. This is enough "complexion aid" says Sally Victor, and no woman will have to be conscious of taking the net off some fellow's back.

TRY BEEF HEARTS

A beef heart is large enough to serve a family of 4 or 5. To prepare it, cut half-way down and discard arteries and veins by using a sharp knife. Sew up partway and then fill with a savory stuffing and bake 2½ hours in a slow oven. Baste every 20 minutes with tomato sauce or boiling water with butter or margarine added (2 tablespoons butter for each 2-3 cup boiling water).

Memos: From the Society Desk

ANNOUNCEMENT is being made of the meeting on Tuesday of the members of the Service League. The group will convene in the undercroft of the Grace Episcopal church at 10 a. m. Luncheon will be served by the committee at 12 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Boyce and family were recent dinner guests of George Boyce near Mansfield.

FAMILY USE

One way to identify the wash cloths and towels of each member of the family is to assign a different color to each person. One member will always have blue, one pink, one green, etc., and there will be no danger of interchange as there is when the same color scheme is used for the entire family.

Woodville Social Has One Guest

Mrs. Gibbs Perry entertained 24 members of the Woodville Social club at her home Friday afternoon. One guest, Mrs. Leonard Frost was in attendance. Bunco was the diversion with score prize presented to Mrs. Archie Spain, Mrs. Bessie Swisher and Mrs. Frost.

Plans were made for a picnic to be held at Liberty Park Aug. 18. At a late hour the hostess served refreshments. The next meeting will be held Sept. 3 at the home of Mrs. Carl Dupre, South Main street road.

Past Matrons Hold Luncheon

Dessert-luncheon was served Friday at 1:30 to 23 members of the Past Matrons club when the group met at the home of Mrs. Louisa Ruhl, Marion avenue. Mrs. Elizabeth Reuwee and Mrs. Ruth Keefe, were the associate hostesses. Garden flowers decorated the home.

Mrs. Virginia Mather was in charge of the devotions. During the business session discussion was held on canteen volunteer work for the members. Later a social hour was enjoyed. The group will meet at the Masonic Temple on Sept. 3 for a dessert-luncheon in charge of Mrs. Sarah Ford, Mrs. Norma Miller and Miss Ada Schuler. Mrs. Dale Jessop, a guest spoke to the group on the canteen work being done by women of this vicinity.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, August 8.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds auguries of a particularly lively and active day although this movement may be noticed in a reign of both public and private indulgence and extravagances. Matters held within bound of reason and good sense should flourish but other trends may prove disastrous.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a lively and successful year, with enterprise, intiative and cleverness flourishing to a high degree. Particularly are new propositions and projects of importance encouraged. On the other hand there may be a menace through too expansive ideas or ambition or in an over-extravagant tendency, with personal and private lavishness.

A child born on this day may be energetic, clever, aggressive and ambitious, but it may defeat itself by exaggerated ideas.

For Monday, August 9.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of business and personal contacts that call for extreme caution, self-control and patience, lest there be severe penalties for impetuosity, arrogance, loss of temper and other impulsive or reckless emotions and behavior. Employers or others in power are to be treated with due respect and restraint lest position be jeopardized. Physical safety must also be safeguarded. Personal relations, social or affectionally, may offer recompense.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a successful, progressive and happy year, if they determine to put the brakes rigidly on the impulses and emotions. Under the high tempo of attaining desired objectives there might be danger of excitement, loss of control, of tongue and temper, inciting want employers, to disastrous degree. The personal safety should also be protected. Social and sentimental associations may be compensatory.

A child born on this day may have a really kindly and well-intentional nature, but may invite loss and regret through want of self-restraint and discipline.

"The Authority on Authorities"

LET HIM HELP MORE

Some players seem to have a genius for helping their opponents. You probably have met the type. Let's hope you are not one. You know, the kind who has a genius for doing just the very thing his opposition hopes he will do. Who not only makes bids which guide them in later play, but also falls for temptation when you give him a chance to make some one particular mistake. When you recognize one, please let him have every chance possible to help you accomplish additional things.

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♥	1 NT	Dbl
2 ♣	2 ♦	Pass	4 ♥

What a slaughter if East had not taken the opponents "off the hook" with his bid of diamonds. This deal was in a match point pair duplicate, and South was straining for tricky results when he made that No Trump bid. North, thinking his partner had made a pure psychic, tried to rescue him, and East was afraid the not-vulnerable opponents would get away with a cheap sacrifice.

East, however, made good use of the information South's bid gave him. He won the spade K lead with the A, finessed the diamond J, scored the K, took in the club tops and ruffed the club 7, setting up the 9, scored the diamond A for a spade discard and then, having counted South for four spades and three of everything else, made him take the spade J with the Q.

So doing, he gave South a chance to make a bad mistake, and he made it—a lead of the heart Q. East won with the A, finessed the heart 9, dropped South's Q with the K, and finished with the heart 5 and club 9.

Having taken all but one trick, he had the top score on the deal, and South was bottom. He could have taken a second trick positively by merely returning a spade when he was in the lead with the Q. His trump holding was a positive trick unless he led the suit himself.

Your Week-End Lesson.

Are you familiar with the provisions of the new Laws of Contract Bridge on the following matters connected with scoring?

1. Agreeing on the result of a deal before scoring it?
2. How many should keep score?
3. Who is the winner of the rubber—the side that won two games, or the side which scored the greater total?
4. Redress for a call or play made relying on an incorrect score?
5. Correction of errors in the score?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Whoa!" Dicky bade me with a teasing smile. "Rein in the ponies!"

"Did you see her go down?" I asked, banally enough, and was properly abashed at his answer.

"Not having a periscope, and not being otherwise equipped to look around corners, I did not," he returned. "But I heard you coming clippety-clip across the corridor, and knew that you would never have risked making even that slight noise if the Wild Woman had still been on the floor."

"I wonder if Olina has arrived," I said next, conscious that I was being inexcusably jittery but finding it impossible to keep the query back.

He shot a keen glance at me and put both his hands on my shoulders.

"Pull yourself together!" he commanded. "Everything's going all right so far. It's a lead pipe cinch that came didn't suspect anything or I would have had to dash to your rescue to keep her from chewing you into bits.

"I'll know the minute Olina crosses the threshold of the hotel," he went on. "My listening post near the door will phone me up here. Then I'll summon the guards on this floor to their battle stations, just behind the slightly opened doors of their rooms. I'll be behind the door, and the guard who comes up with Olina and Ruth—incognito of course — will go straight to 1722, unlock the door with his key, go in and shut the door again. A second later he'll open it again, the merest crack, so as to be ready for any emergency.

Must Be In Evidence.

"But you're the one who will have to be on your toes first," he said. "You are the only one who can be in evidence, and you must be in the hall near Ruth Hayes' door when she and Olina come up to it, so that Olina can see you and know you're at hand.

"Then I'd advise you to skitter into that 'Exit' alcove," he continued. "Ruth won't pay any attention to you. She's so accustomed to native servants, down in the wilderness, who are only a few degrees removed from monkeys, that she underestimates the ones she finds up here. You'll be able to listen with all your ears for any outcry of Olina's. You don't think the girl will be so frightened, if Ruth does tackle her, that she'll be afraid to yell 'Maid!' as Dad told her?"

"I can't imagine Olina being really frightened at anything Ruth Hayes could do here in the open," I said.

"Exactly," I answered, and then started toward the door as the telephone pealed.

"Wait!" Dicky said over his shoulder as he headed for the instrument. "You'll have time enough."

I stopped and waited tensely, while he took down the receiver.

Speaking, he said laconically, in answer I surmised to the inquiring utterance of his name at the other end of the wire. "Okay. I understand. We'll be ready up here, from now on."

He put up the receiver, and turned to me.

"Olina just came in, and is on her way to the spot where Ruth Hayes is waiting for her," he said. "Stand here just a second."

He stepped into the hall, raised a small whistle to his lips, and blew upon it faintly, yet audibly. At the signal, three stalwart men appeared at the doors of the rooms to which they had been assigned.

Gives the Word.

"Coming up," Dicky said tersely. "Get back, and keep on your toes."

They obeyed him without comment, and then my husband took me by the shoulders again.

"Remember one thing," he said. "If Olina does yell 'Maid!' don't give any faintest hint that you know what is really up. Just rush up and ask her if she feels sick, or what's the matter? You can bet Ruth will have an alibi ready, and if Olina is as self-possessed as you think she is, she won't give anything away."

"I'm sure Father must have coached her on all the possibilities," I said.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

John Esselburn, Madison high school quarterback in 1934-35-36, is home from the navy for a short time, and reports that he likes the navy fine because he doesn't have to call the plays any more, just run 'em.

John probably has had some interesting plays on the briny deep at that, serving with a navy unit aboard merchant vessels.

But the life seems to agree with him. His best playing weight in high school was 135 pounds. Now he's clear up to 150.

Whizzer White recalls that when John was playing out on Ram Hill, he was continually getting bunged up, and this part of the game he didn't like because it took him out of action and put him on the bench.

It seems, says Whizzer, that one season was particularly tough on John in the way of injuries, and he was becoming more than a bit irked.

The Rams were playing Loudonville at Blue Goose field when John came out of a quarterback sneak with his hand dangling limply, and smeared with blood.

Going to the bench he dangled the bloody hand in front of Madison Mentor Al Fendrick, exclaiming:

"Gee whiz, coach, I'm brittle!"

Howard Thomas used to play football at Mt. Vernon for Coach Paul Snyder, now tutor of the Mansfield Tygers.

Thomas went to Denison where he made All-Ohio guard, then coached at Byesville, and Shadyside.

He's just been appointed coach at Ashtabula Harbor, where they turn out some pretty fair football teams.

And his first assistant on the new job will be Troy Snyder, Paul's oldest brother. Small world, isn't it?

Cates Wreckers made another trip to Galion this week, but they're not saying anything about it.

Score: Galion 9, Cates 4.

Bob Anthony got a home run which the Galion paper reported "was the best hit of the game, although he made the round trip alone."

* * *

Anyone who has seen Anthony ankle down a football field knows that he's used to making the trip alone—after the first ten yards.

Winning-Losing Streaks Snapped

(By Associated Press)

The long losing and winning strings of Indianapolis and Kansas City, respectively, were snapped last night in the American Association baseball race.

The Indians, front-runners a month ago, blanked St. Paul 1-0 to conclude a 10-game losing slump which skidded them into third place. Otho Nitcholas gave only one base on balls, but he threw wide to third in an attempt to nail a runner and the error accounted for the winning tally.

It took the Toledo Mud Hens 12 innings to dispose of the revitalized Kansas City Blues, 2-1, the Blues first defeat in nine games. Art Keller's single, Fred Sanford's sacrifice and Len Schulte's hit accounted for the Hens' winning run.

* * *

Louisville whipped Minneapolis twice by identical 8-1 counts, and the Columbus Red Birds snapped their five-game losing streak with twin 3-1 wins over the league-leading Milwaukee Brewers.

Joe Garagiola, 17-year-old Red Bird catcher, broke a 1-1 stalemate in the eighth with a home run. In the nightcap, Columbus touched Earl Caldwell for three runs in the third inning.

Reynolds Has 3-Hit Shutout

Indians Whip Jinx Johnny Niggeling.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Allie Reynolds is providing Cleveland baseball fans with consolation for the loss of Bob Feller.

The 25-year-old Oklahoman has earned a regular starting berth with the Indians and ranks with Charley Wensloff of the Yankees and Milo Candini of Washington as the best freshman pitchers in the league.

His latest effort was a three-hitter against the St. Louis Browns last night as the Tribesmen opened a 25-game home stay with a 1 to 0 triumph.

The win was doubly satisfying for the opposing moundsman was an old Indian nemesis, Johnny Niggeling. The veteran knuckle baller allowed only two hits but a lapse of control and a single delivered on a hit and run play caused his defeat.

Niggeling had two strikes on Oris Hockett, who led off in the fourth inning, but one of his knucklers went astray and struck the Indian on the shoulder. Roy Cullenbine drove a single through short on the hit and run and Hockett dashed for third. He scored the game's only run as Jeff Heath hit into a double play.

Only two Brownies reached second base as Reynolds fashioned his second three-hitter of the year and his third shutout. The victory was his fifth against six setbacks.

The young fireballer struck out nine batters and brought his total for the year to 82. He fanned Chet Laabs, the Browns' cleanup hitter, three times.

The Indians move from the Stadium to League park for the second game of the series today. Al Smith, a 10-game winner to date, opposes Steve Sundra, former Cleveland sandlotter.

CLIMBING

CHICAGO —(AP)— The Cincinnati Reds were within an easy glance of the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates today but they needed a powerful set of binoculars to get anything more than a glimpse of the pace setting St. Louis Cardinals.

* * *

The Reds not only won their game against the Cubs yesterday, 9 to 7, but pulled up a half-game closer to second place when the Cardinals slapped the Pirates and Rip Sewell 8 to 3 in a night contest. But the Cards are still 13½ games in front of the Reds.

In winning from the Cubs the Reds blasted starter Eddie Hanyzewske and relief man Paul Derringer off the mound with two big innings and then cut a Chicago rally short in the ninth.

Hanyzewski, a young righthander from South Bend, Ind., but whose record does not indicate he even went to Notre Dame despite his first string linesman's name, was sent to the sidelines in the five-run second inning.

Bert Haas tripled, singles by Eddie Miller and Ray Mueller, a sacrifice by Ray Starr, a safety by Lonnie Frey, a pass to Estel Crabtree and one-base blows by Eric Tipton and Steve Mesner accounted for the Reds five tallies.

In the fifth the Reds added four more runs on Crabtree's single, a sacrifice by Tipton, Mesner's single, a pair of passes and singles by Clyde Shoun and Frey.

The Cubs, who scored five runs in the third and seventh innings, got across two more in the ninth and loaded the bases before Joe Beggs forced Stann Hack to ground out.

Johnny Vander Meer will oppose Hank Wyse in today's game.

MAPLE LAKE SWAMPS PROSPECT 19-2

Breaking loose in the third with a string of big innings, Maple Lake swamped Prospect 19-2 in the junior park softball league yesterday. Gaubatz hit a home run for the winners.

Empire Steel won on forfeit from South Boulevard Midgets in the other game.

8 HORSES START IN CHICAGO HANDICAP

CHICAGO —(INS)— A sprinting duel between Occupation and Signator was predicted as eight horses went to the post today in the $10,000 Chicago handicap at Washington park.

The six-furlong dash had been considered the property of Alsab until the 1942 champion 3-year-old was shipped east earlier this week.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Yale university gridders turn out for their first workout of the summer and from the looks of things, each has a kick coming. From the left are Bob Pickett, Warren Hall, Jack Holister and John Carey.

Ryder Cup Matches Open

Protest Raised Over Selection of Teams.

DETROIT —(AP)— Golf's world series, the Ryder cup matches, opened a two-day stand today at the Plum Hollow course over the protest of one of the game's greats concerning the make-up of Craig Wood's cup team.

At Philadelphia the voice of Leo Diegel, Detroit-born pro, was raised against selection of Al Watrous and Frank Walsh of Detroit on the Ryder squad that is out to make it two straight over Walter Hagen's challengers.

"Walsh and Watrous probably will be good drawing cards in Detroit," said Diegel, four-time member of the American cup team against the British, "but I think there are many others better qualified."

Diegel was promptly hooted down by Hagen.

"Sam Snead, Horton Smith and Ben Hogan of the cup squad are in the service play," Hagen declared. "Wood picked Watrous and Walsh in an emergency to fill the No. 8 spot on the squad. President Dudley and all other high PGA officials have approved. I guess that ought to settle it."

Under this ripple of dissatisfaction, the cup forces went into the fourth domestic renewal of the war-orphaned classic as 7 to 5 favorites to widen their 2 to 1 series lead.

Hagen's return to competition as a partner of young Melvin (Chick) Harbert against Gene Sarazen and Wood topped the first day's play. Tomorrow's singles feature a return match against O'Neil (Buck) White and Harold (Jug) McSpaden, his conqueror a fornight ago in a playoff for the Chicago Tam O'Shanter title.

Total receipts that may reach $30,000 will go to the Red Cross.

Gunder Given Competition

Handicap Runners to Set Pace In Cincy.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Gunder Haegg may not be the first man across the finish line in the two-mile race here today, but even so he may crack his own world record of 8:47.8 for the distance.

Although there are four men in the race, only the slender Swede and Gil Dodds, Boston divinity student, are starting from scratch.

Bill Hulse, New York university student who broke the American record for the outdoor mile in Cleveland last week, and Bob Berger of Bay Village, will start the race from 'way up front.

Hulse will toe the mark 300 yards in front of the starting line and Berger will begin his cinder-pounding 660 yards ahead of the starter's gun.

Just what this will do to the competitive spirit of Gunder the Wonder was a subject of much debate here. Haegg has never been headed, at least not for long, in a race in the United States. On several occasions he has indicated he might have done better under stiffer competition.

Next week Haegg will make his final American appearance at New York Wednesday in a one-mile handicap affair.

ALL-STAR GRIDDERS ARRIVE FOR DRILLS

EVANSTON, Ill. — (AP) — The bulk of an all-star squad numbering some 70 players hit town today to start practicing for the football game with the Washington Redskins and found that they will bunk in improvised quarters established in the alcoves of Northwestern's Dyche stadium.

The university's fraternity building and dorms, which in previous years housed the all-stars, have become war casualties, being filled to the rafters with marine and navy students. The gridders thus will be bedded down right at the scene of their football spectacle which comes off in the front yard of "Dyche hotel" on the night of Aug. 25.

Camilli Move Defended

Says Dolph Had Right To Quit Baseball.

By SID FEDER
(Pinch Hitting For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

NEW YORK—(AP)—Well, it had to happen: Lew Jenkins is in Africa with the Coast Guard . . . The boys put on a boxing show and laughing Lew picked out a native and said he'd take him on. . . . And the native only knocked Lew's ears off . . . Or, with a nod to Longfellow:

To Africa's far distant strands.
The Coast Guard took our old pal Looey.
A native fresh in off the sands
Threw just one punch — and Looie went blooie.

Luke Palling needs 10 more bingles to join the 2,000-hit club . . . . There are only seven active players in it now . . . What ever happened to President Roosevelt's plan to name a three-man sports commission? . . . And if it isn't lined up yet, Mr. President, how about Jimmy Walker? . . . Our "late" ex-mayor wrote New York's boxing law . . .

* * *

Pat Purcell, Minneapolis Times: Tony Stecher is taking over boxing in Minneapolis and has pledged the fans honest fights. How about using Buck Harris with William D. Cox, three rounds, no holds or punches barred.

* * *

Walter Hagen had some of the golf bugs popping their eyes when he got his game hot again with only a couple of practice rounds. . . . But here's the tip-off: The Haig has two wall-sized mirrors in his room and has been practicing in front of them by the hour for months . . . Probably stepped up, assumed his stance, and said, "Here's looking at you, Walter."

* * *

Note to Billy Conn, Camp Campbell, Ky.: How about that phone call, Junior? . . . National League Prexy Ford Frick says Branch Rickey has a "moral if not a technical" obligation to the Giants since Dolph Camilli retired immediately after the Dodgers traded him . . . Joe Donovan, the ex-Newark sports ed, checks in with the educational tid-bit that in a recent Athens (Ga.) navy preflight boxing bout, Cadet Wisdom tangled with Cadet Strength—and Cadet Law was the referee . . . Duck, Joe, you're a target. . .

Letter from North Africa reports Al (Warner) Weissberger, one-time California promoter, and Gil Benaim, who managed Pedro Montanez and Georges Carpentier for a while, are doing a honey of a job putting on service men's boxing shows for the boys in Casablanca and thereabouts . . . Benaim was discharged from the army after being injured in the battle for Tunis but pleaded for a chance to stay around . . . Weissburger still is in khaki . . . In one of their brawls recently, Ziggie Lander, the Chicago welter, knocked off the champion of Arabia.

MANSFIELD JUNIORS DEFEAT CRESTLINE

Mansfield and Crestline Y. M. C. A. Juniors were scheduled for a 7-inning softball game at Crestline yesterday. At the end of seven frames of a well played tilt, the score was 3-3.

Then the lid blew off. In the eighth Mansfield scored six runs and Crestline three. Mansfield winning 9-6.

Majors of Mansfield hit a home run.

WINS 10 IN ROW

AKRON —(INS)— Winner of his last 10 starts and thus owner of the longest winning streak boasted by any thoroughbred currently in action, Vendor's Lein opposes Sonny Casey, who has five victories in a row, in a $1,000 stake race at Ascot park today. Each will carry 118 pounds in the 7-furlong feature. Five clicking favorites gave form players a big day at Ascot yesterday.

Stadium Fence Idea Dies

Too Many Obstacles In Way of Indian Homers.

By DENNIS DALTON

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— The idea of building a six-foot-high fence to shorten the outfield in spacious Cleveland stadium so the Indians can get more base hits today appeared to be dying a natural death without the benefit of funeral services or flowers.

* * *

There was an exchange of letters between Alva Bradley, club president, and Sheldon Ferbert, the man who offers to build the fence gratis, but the "if's" and "but's" in Bradley's note put the deal on the same basis as an order for more sirloin steak.

Ferbert, a fence builder by trade and a rabid baseball fan by choice, made his free offer through Franklin Lewis, a Cleveland sports writer. He said he would be willing to absorb all costs to see the Tribe go on a hitting spree in the stadium.

Bradley, who had remained silent while fans and players for past weeks were talking about the fence, apparently couldn't ignore the free offer after it appeared in the newspapers and so wrote Ferbert a letter, calling the "bluff."

But it was no bluff as far as Ferbert was concerned. The fence builder promptly replied in kind to Bradley, saying he was ready to send workmen over to the stadium right now to start construction of the fence.

Bradley mentioned priorities and getting permission of the American league and city officials as a possible barrier to the idea, but Ferbert said he has the fence in his lumber yard and that he doesn't think permission is necessary.

* * *

"This is no publicity stunt on my part," Ferbert said today. "I made the offer as a baseball fan. If the Indians need the fence to start hitting in the stadium, I'll give it to them free of charge."

Bradley acknowledged the receipt of Ferbert's reply to his letter and promised to go through with the deal "if everything can be worked out."

* * *

"There are a lot of things to be done before Ferbert can build the fence," he said. "I've got to see the fence. I don't know whether he has the labor to do it. I must consult league officials, and I have to see the mayor about it."

* * *

So, as said earlier, the fence idea is having a mighty tough time keeping alive. The obstacles in the way seem to be higher than the rightfield wall at League park, where the Indians would rather play in the first place.

Scotty served four years and 10 months in prison when he was convicted of automobile theft shortly after graduation from high school. However, he became the star of the prison grid team, so the Eagles signed him on release. (International).

Musial Keeps Batting Lead

Luke Appling Remains On Top In American.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals, the major league's leading hitter the past two weeks, retained his top spot this week with a .340 average for 98 games. The Chicago White Sox's veteran shortstop, Luke Appling, continued to pace the American league with a .331 average for 94 contests.

The front running Cardinals retained their major league supremacy in club hitting with an increase of one percentage point over last week's figures to post a team average of .274. The Cincinati Reds maintained the lead in club fielding with .980, an increase of one point over last week's figures.

The Philadelphia Athletics stayed at the top of the list in American league fielding with a percentage of .976, a point off the average posted last week. Detroit held the pace in the junior circuit's hitting department with an average of .259.

Truett (Rip) Sewell of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is still head and shoulders above the rest of the major league hurlers with 17 victories and only two losses. Orval Grove of the Chicago White Sox, added another victory to his record this week to continue as the pace setting hurler in the American league with 10 victories and one defeat.

Sewell's Streak Halted

Cards Pound Slow Ball For 8 to 3 Triumph.

By TED MEIER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

RIP SEWELL'S 11-game winning streak for the Pittsburgh Pirates ended abruptly last night as the first place St. Louis Cardinals pounded out an 8 to 3 triumph.

The 35-year-old Sewell and the tantalizing slow ball had handicuffed National league hitters since May 9, when he lost a 4 to 3 game to the Cards at Sportsmen's Park.

His bid for his 18th victory came to grief through the hitting of Stan Musial and Ray Sanders, backing up Max Lanier's five-hit pitching. Musial, league-leading swatsmith, whacked four hits in four times at bat while Sanders drove in five runs with a double and triple.

Although beaten, Sewell remains the standout twirler in the majors with a record of 17 triumphs against three defeats.

Cincinnati climbed within 1½ games of the second place Pirates by again beating the Cubs, 9 to 7. The Reds piled up a big lead, but Ray Starr and Clyde Shoun couldn't hold it and had to call in Joe Beggs to stamp out a ninth inning Cub rally.

The New York Yankees started a long road trip by taking a 4-0 shutout at the hands of Roger Wolff, knuckle ball artist of the Athletics.

Johnny Niggeling of the St. Louis Browns held Cleveland to only two hits, but dropped a tough 1 to 0 decision to Allie Reynolds, who twirled a three-hitter. Niggeling made the mistake of hitting Oris Hockett with a pitched ball in the fourth. Roy Cullenbine singled Hockett to third, from where he scored as Jeff Heath hit into a double play.

Detroit handed Orval Grove of the White Sox his second defeat of the year, 6 to 0, as Rudy York socked his 15th homer of the season. Dutch Leonard won his eighth game in pitching Washington to a 4 to 2 victory over the Boston Red Sox. The P hillies beat the New York Giants, 7 to 4, by virtue of Ron Northey's two homers and Bill Lee's relief pitching.

ARMSTRONG BEATS JIMMY GARRISON

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—Hammerin' Henry Armstrong took another long stride toward the welterweight title he once held by scoring a 10-round decision over Jimmy Garrison, Kansas City slugger, last night in the Portland Civic auditorium.

Armstrong, 140-pound Los Angeles Negro, carried too much leather for Garrison, who weighed 148.

With efficiency and convenience the prime moving factors, fly rod lengths have constantly and continually shortened over the years. In the days of Rube Wood and Seth Green, 1862-1875, rod lngths averaged well over 12 feet. From 1882 to 1890 the favored length was about 11 feet. From 1895 to 1905 another foot was lost, so that now a 9 foot rod seems to be the most popular length.

A big mystery: Corporal Willis DeWitt, from Washington C.H., Ohio, is with the U. S. Army in India. He sent an Ohio pheasant leg band to State Conservation department, saying he had killed the bird wearing it in India and wanted to know how come. Nobody seems to know the answer . . . maybe the bird was a stowaway.

When chewing gum or tar gets stuck to your dog's foot-pads, turpentine or benzine, sometimes used, is apt to burn the tender skin between the dog's toes. The best and quickest thing to use is ether, and if you haven't any on hand, ordinary nail polish remover will do the job very satisfactorily.

TRADE SOMETHING YOU HAVE FOR SOMETHING YOU NEED MORE

Due to war time scarcities swapping is back in style. To help you solve your problems through swapping, The News-Journal publishes a "Wanted To Swap" heading in the Want Ad section. Through a low cost Want Ad you can contact somebody who has what you need and who needs something which you have discarded.

To sell or swap used articles, telephone a Want Ad to 4251-6.

MART STEADY ON MODERATE TRADE ACTION

Individual Income Payment Sets New Monthly Mark Of $12,100,000,000.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stocks were steady in today's early dealings with volume moderate.

A number of industrial, utility and rail leaders gained slightly on opening trades. These included American Water Works, Southern Pacific, North American and U. S. Steel. Unchanged to a shade lower were Bethlehem Steel, Kennecott Copper and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Of interest to financial analysts was the commerce department's report that income payments to individuals established a new monthly record of $12,100,000,000 in June, a rise of more than $1,000,000,000 over the May total. Payments in the first half of 1943 increased to $67,100,000,000, or 27 per cent above a year ago.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Grains opened steady and with little change today in the absence of any important over-night news to effect price trends.

Wheat started unchanged to ¾ lower, Sept. $1.45¾, Dec. $1.46¾-⅞, and rye was unchanged to ¼ lower. Sept. $1.82⅜-¼.

TOLEDO GRAIN

TOLEDO —(AP)— Grain on track 25c New York rate, nominal: Wheat: No. 2 red $1.73½-74½. Others unchanged.

THEATERS

Got 'Em Both.

Betty Grable has George Montgomery and Cesar Romero on a merry-go-round as both chaps try to outsmart each other for her affections in 20th Century-Fox's technicolor musical, "Coney Island," which opens today at the Ohio. The film deals with the famous New York entertainment resort, and Betty dances and sings her way through one scene after another. Four new "hit" tunes as well as a number of older favorites give Miss Grable plenty of materials for song and dance.

Youngest Profession.

In a humorous tale of 'teen age, movie-mad autograph hunters, Virginia Weidler steps into her most promising role to date in "The Youngest Profession," now showing at the Madison. A lot of comical situations arise when she sets out in pursuit of the autographs of Greer Garson, Lana Turner, William Powell, Robert Taylor and Walter Pidgeon, who serve as guest stars to play themselves and sign the coveted autographs. Madison co-attraction is "Yanks Ahoy."

Reveille With Beverly.

Swing fans will be in their glory at the Park starting tomorrow when Columbia's "Reveille With Beverly," opens with Ann Miller and four of the nation's best known dance bands. The bands are Duke Ellington, generally considered the best orchestra leader in America, Bob Crosby, Freddy Slack and Count Basie. Frank Sinatra is also in the picture. "Reveille With Beverly" presents Miss Miller as the cheery-voice director of an early morning program intended for the early rising boys of the U. S. Army. Based upon the actual program the picture shows how the "dawn jam session" operates. Co-attraction is "I Escaped From the Gestapo."

Old Team.

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, currently seen in "Air Raid Wardens" at the Ritz, form one of the oldest partnerships in Hollywood. The two comedians hooked up in 1924, the days of the silent films. Hardy was born in Harlem, Ga., a true gentleman of the "old south." Laurel made his "debut" in Ulberstone, England. He came to America in 1910 when he appeared in a show, "The London Comedians" with Charlie Chaplin as the star. Ritz co-attraction is "Gaucho Serenade."

WILL TEST LAW

Attorney Plans to Challenge Anti-Strike Legislation.

PITTSBURGH—(INS)— Constitutionality of the new Smith-Connally anti-strike law will be challenged formally in U. S. district court in Pittsburgh by 30 western Pennsylvania miners waiting trial on an indictment charging conspiracy in the recent work stoppages in government-operated soft coal mines, it was indicated today.

Former Congressman Harry A. Estep, who has been retained by the miners as counsel, said he would base his defense on the question of the validity of the law.

ing up our application with more information for the WPB," Mayor Locke said.

The letter which he is having reproduced outlines the CAA preliminary plans for the project and informs the city that a tentative $600,000 federal grant had been allowed for the airport work. It described the project as essential to the war program.

Grading work on the airport is not scheduled to start until early in 1944, but the city wants to have Route 13 relocated by that time so it won't hold up the construction program.

State highway department engineers from the Ashland office have been making a check of the proposed airport site this week to be ready to recommend a new route around the project when the state authorizes the relocation.

ON PROBATION

Father Gets Suspended Sentence For Non-Support.

Clifford Nixon, 37, was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail today after he pleaded guilty to charges of non-support.

Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer suspended the jail sentence and put Nixon on six months probation ordering him to pay $10 a week toward the support of his children.

He has just completed serving out a fine of $50 and costs received in municipal court for driving while intoxicated.

HIGHWAY SUIT APPEAL LOSES

Court Upholds Denial of Injunction on Freeway.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The second district court of appeals upheld today a common pleas court decision denying Samuel A. Horvitz, Cleveland contractor, an injunction to halt construction of the Willow Freeway in Cuyahoga county.

Horvitz brought his action against Highway Director Hal G. Sours, charging the state's contract with the Lombardo Construction company of Cleveland was "irregular" and that the road could not be of use militarily since it would not be finished before the war ended.

Judge Joseph M. Clifford denied the injunction and Horvitz appealed.

ment of it before we begin action of our own," Dr. Wild said.

He pointed out that the health department already has "cleaned up two places and is checking others as we can get to them."

The city needs a systematic program which would take in rat control, sanitary measures in meat markets, and the proper inspection of slaughter houses outside the city before they are permitted to deliver meat to Mansfielders, the health commissioner added.

In checking markets and slaughter houses, the health department found that conditions were "nauseating" in some of them, with rats overrunning basements where meat is kept and slaughterers butchering animals in buildings that fell far short of meeting health requirements, Dr. Wild asserted.

FEAR SUBSIDES

Nelson Doubts Necessity For Rationing Coal.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Possibility that coal will be rationed during the coming winter lessened today with disclosure that War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson is not convinced that such drastic action will be necessary.

Nelson is understood to have stated his opposition to coal rationing, except as a last resort, to Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown and Chester Bowles, OPA general manager, at a conference this week.

The door was not closed on coal rationing, however, it was learned. Nelson agreed that OPA should proceed with its plans to prepare an overall rationing plan which could be put into effect without delay should circumstances warrant.

MISSION HINTED

Italian Peace Envoys Thought Aboard 'Secret Plane.'

LONDON—(INS)—An Italian passenger plane carrying passengers whose identity was cloaked in secrecy was scheduled to arrive today at the Lisbon airport, according to a Reuters dispatch, giving rise to speculation that it may be flying on a peace mission.

The Lisbon airport was warned last night of the plane's approach, the dispatch said.

dents were also further disturbed by the fact that the Royal Air Force planes had dropped leaflets on Berlin warning that the city would suffer the same fate at Hamburg. He said that panic-stricken residents rushed immediately to railway stations in an effort to stream out of the city. Many departed by bicycle and afoot, he reported.

That the Germans have reason to be distressed was emphasized by disclosure that the Allied air forces based in Britain already have completed plans for a tremendous fall and winter aerial assault on Germany proper.

Rumania still smarted under the impact of last Sunday's large-scale American bombardment of the Ploesti oil refineries. Further reports via Stockholm said the biggest of the fires started among oil installations raged for four days and it was estimated that 200,000 tons of petroleum already had been destroyed and that more constantly is being consumed in flames.

Von Ribbentrop Conferring In Rome

BULLETIN

LONDON —(U.P.)— The Italian regime of Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio appeared to be stiffening its attitude toward the Allies today following arrival of Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop and a Rome radio broadcast saying that fear of Communism was one reason for refusal to surrender unconditionally.

LONDON—(U.P.)—German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop is conferring in Rome with Italian Foreign Minister Raffaele Guariglia on an Italian request for the withdrawal of German troops from Italy as a step toward taking Italy out of the war, an Italian frontier dispatch said today.

Simultaneously, Swiss sources heard that County Galleazzo Ciano, son-in-law of the ousted dictator Benito Mussolini, Carlo Scorza, general secretary of the Fascist party, and 21 other prominent Fascists have been arrested as war profiteers.

Reports reached Madrid by way of France that King Victor Emmanuel has turned down a written request from Adolf Hitler to permit Mussolini, last reported under arrest in a Rome villa, to take refuge in Germany.

Another report reaching Madrid said Victor Emmanuel had convoked the crown council late Thursday to discuss Italy's "delicate" situation and the possibility of obtaining better peace terms from the Allies by prolonging resistance.

Report Italians, Japs Confer With Hitler

STOCKHOLM —(U.P.)— Important conferences "of a military and political character" have taken place at Hitler's headquarters, apparently in connection with Nazi diplomatic contacts with Italy and Japan.

The Scandinavian Telegraph bureau's correspondent at Berlin said that photographs of Hitler, Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering and other Nazi leaders had been published in the German newspapers but no date was given other than that the meeting occurred at headquarters recently.

Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop reportedly went to Italy yesterday for a three-day conference and the German News Agency DNB said that the Japanese ambassador previously had been received at Hitler's headquarters on July 29.

REDS SWEEPING NEAR KHARKOV

Within 18 Miles of City as Drive on Central Front Aims at Bryansk.

Tamarovka, 18 miles west, northwest of Belgorod.

Some 250 miles to the north, other Russian armies surging through re-captured Orel were believed nearing Karachev, 45 miles to the west, in a twin offensive aimed at Bryansk, 30 miles farther west and the biggest German base on the central front.

Advances of 3 to 6 miles were chalked up by the Soviets on the Bryansk front yesterday and more than 70 towns, including the highway junction of Kromy, 21 miles southwest of Orel, were liberated.

Russian tank and infantry forces were smashing ahead in pursuit of the beaten Axis Orel armies so rapidly that some observers doubted the Nazis would have a chance to dig in behind a new defense line short of Bryansk itself.

Soviet air force bombers and assault planes blasted and strafed enemy columns retreating toward Bryansk, inflicting heavy casualties despite determined resistance by enemy fighters. Fifty-three German planes were shot down in air combats.

The official Soviet information bureau hailed the smashing of the German offensive against the Kursk salient last month and the subsequent successful Russian counter-offensive liberating both Orel and Belgorod as exploding "the myth that the summer is a season of success for the German army and Soviet armies during the period are forced to retreat."

German losses in the two phases—offensive and counter-offensive — during the past month were estimated by the bureau at 120,000 Germans killed, 4,605 tanks destroyed or disabled, 1,623 guns destroyed or disabled, 11,000 trucks wrecked or damaged, and 2,492 planes shot down.

In addition, the bureau said, the Russians captured 12,418 prisoners, 521 guns, 2,521 machine-guns and 322 various stores.

The significance of the German defeat was indicated by the fact that Hitler in an order of the day to his troops on the eve of their abortive Kursk offensive said the attack "must be the turning for the course of the war," the bureau said.

"This will be Germany's last battle for victory," Hitler was quoted.

The Soviet bureau asserted that the success of the Russian counter-offensives had "deprived the German command of freedom in maneuvering their troops and thus created even more favorable conditions" for the opening of a second front in western Europe.

BATTLE LOOMS ON ARMY SIZE

Congress Expected to Be Put In Uproar Again by WMC Draft-Dads Order.

tion of its recess to "over-ride McNutt's draft fathers order."

Wheeler said that he would press for enactment of his own bill to defer the drafting of fathers until next January 1 or the Kilday bill, already approved by the house, to stay their induction until all single men have been called into service.

The two measures, he said in a reply to McNutt, should "show to you the sentiments in congress and the country regarding this matter . . . why spend billions in countries which have not sent a single soldier to the fronts and draft American fathers."

WPB officials, alarmed over lagging munitions output, warned, however, that war production will "drop spectacularly" if congress blocks the scheduled induction of fathers and fails to make provision for the replacement of single men and childless married men who will have to be withdrawn from war plants to fill draft quotas.

"It is purely a mathematical proposition," one WPB official said. "We either take the single war workers and childless married men who have been deferred for occupational reasons or we start inducting fathers."

The official asserted that there are only two other solutions—to reduce the size of the armed services or to let the quality of the services deteriorate through the induction of men in 4-F classification, which totaled approximately 2,976,000 men last July 1.

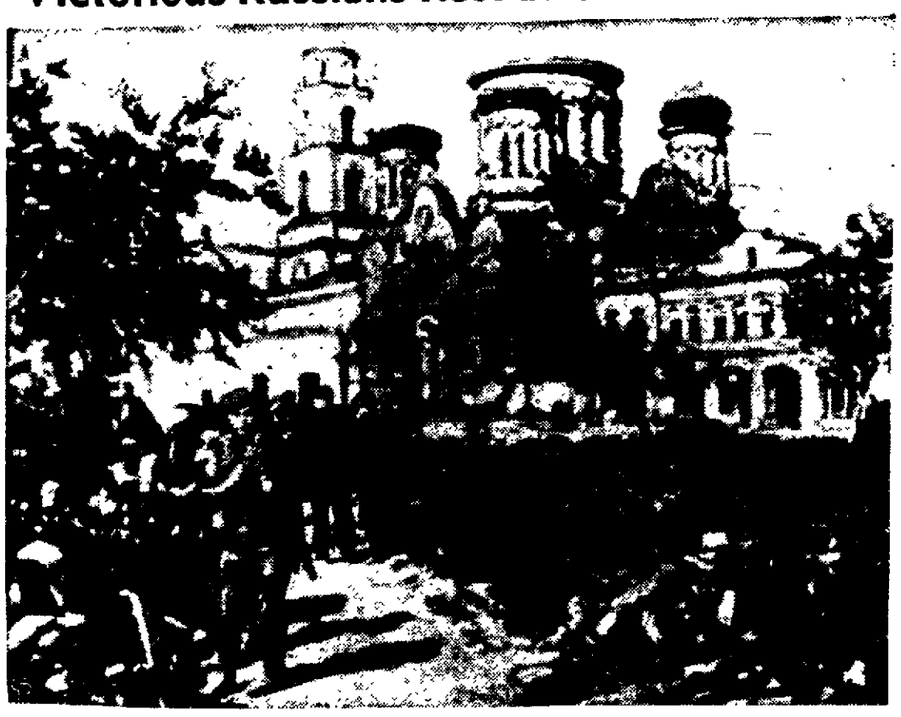
YANKS WIN FIERCEST BATTLE

Victorious Russians Rest at Orel as Beaten German Captives Look Glumly Into the Future



Victorious Russian soldiers rest briefly, above, in Orel's May 1st square after their capture of the city before resuming their pursuit of the fleeing Germans. However, the pause was very short, for already the Soviet forces are several miles beyond the one-time Nazi stronghold advancing toward Bryansk. This photo was radied from Moscow. Horrors of the Russian campaign have left their mark on Hitler's youth educated to become the master race. These German soldiers, hardly more than boys, are pictured after their capture by victory-seeking Russian troops in the Kuban valley sector of the eastern front.

Berlin to Be Made Open City, Report

All Ministries to Be Moved, Istanbul Hears

Nazi Capital Reported Near Panic With Populace Making Mass Exodus In Fear Of Heavy Allied Bombings.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—With the populace of Berlin reported in a state of near panic over fear of forthcoming Allied aerial bombardments, word came today from Istanbul that the Nazis planned to declare the capital an open city..

Reports circulated in German circles in Istanbul, said a Reuters dispatch from the Turkish capital, that the Nazis plan to remove all government ministries and other important services to Dresden, Leipzig, Munich and Prague

Swiss dispatches quoted travelers from Germany as saying that authorities in Berlin are at their wits end trying to cope with a mass stampede from the city, prompted by fear that the Nazi capital will suffer the same fate as Hamburg These reports following an admission by Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels that the Nazis fully expect Berlin will be the target of concerted attacks. He said that the city already had been partly evacuated.

The fear of Berliners was intensified by the arrival of refugees from Hamburg who entered the city without official permits and spread fantastic stories of casualties inflicted by a week-long Allied bombardment. Numerous refugees were reported arrested in an effort to control the panic spreading in Berlin.

One report via Stockholm said a traveler from Berlin reported that the nerves of Berlin resi-

NINE-TO-ONE

That's Yanks' Score on Jap Planes Bagged In China.

KUNMING, Aug. 6 (Delayed) —(AP)—The score stands at 9 to 1 in favor of Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault's 14th American air force in the matter of enemy planes definitely destroyed at the end of 13 months of operations in China, it was announced today.

(This ratio does not include 166 Japanese planes claimed as probably destroyed in aerial combat.

The figures were released at the headquarters of the 14th U. S. A. A. F. on the comparative enemy and American losses from July 4, 1942, when the United States took over from the American volunteer group to last Aug. 4.

CLAIM ALLIED LEADERS MEET

DNB Reports Churchill on Way to See FDR, Reports Stalin Will Join Them.

(By United Press)

LONDON - The German DNB agency said under a Stockholm date today that Prime Minister Churchill was believed en route to a war strategy conference with President Roosevelt.

Diplomatic circles in Stockholm were said to believe that Premier Marshal Josef Stalin also would attend. Stalin at present is on a six-week inspection tour of the front, DNB said, and in his absence Foreign Commissar Viasheslav Molotov is serving as chief of government with Ivan Maisky, Soviet ambassador to Britain, directing the foreign commissariat.

Informed sources in London speculated that Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt might confer in the next few weeks with a view toward speeding up the conduct of the war in the light of recent Allied successes.

Council Expects To Clear Tangle Over Depository

When city council meets as a unit committee Tuesday night to consider requests of city employes for a $35 monthly pay increase, it will also try to clear up the confusion that has grown out of the proposed selection of a depository for city funds for the next two years.

The depository question came before council last Tuesday night, but for a reason which no one could explain, there was no legislation presented for action.

Two bids were received by council and the letting had been advertised for last Tuesday. City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner explained to council, however, that there wasn't any necessity for action until the Sept. 7 meeting.

Council members have decided differently, however, and want to name the depository Tuesday night since the law sets the beginning of the depository period for Sept 2, five days before council

CITY ACTS ON MEAT HANDLING

Health Commissioner Cites Need For Broad Program To Assure Sanitation.

The city health department has already started to clean up unsanitary slaughter houses in the Mansfield area, but the department needs a coordinated program to cover meat handling from the time the animal is killed until the purchaser buys his supply for dinner, Dr. W. B Wild, city-county health commissioner, said today.

Meanwhile, Mayor W J Locke said he was in favor of enforcing the state regulations already in effect rather than setting up a city program which would "involve more expense."

Dr. Wild, who charged recently that conditions in some of the city area slaughter houses and meat markets are "deplorable and a definite health threat," said he would ask council to pass a meat inspection ordinance unless the state department of agriculture does something soon to give the city's meat consumers more protection.

"We have no specific city requirements for meat handlers, while the state has a good law, and we want to try to get the cooperation of the state in enforce-

Congress Facing New Battle Over Army Size

Hue and Cry at Drafting of Fathers Expected to Create Uproar When Legislators Return Sept. 14.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The national hue and cry over the drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers today appeared likely to plunge congress into another uproar over the size of the armed forces when the legislators return Sept. 14 from their summer vacation.

Many manpower experts believe that this issue is certain to be reopened, if congress sets out to block a War Manpower Commission order instructing local draft boards to begin reclassifying men with children born prior to Sept 15 1942, preparatory to their induction into the armed forces after Oct. 1.

WMC Chairman Paul V. McNutt and National Selective Service officials have stood firm on their order despite a demand from Sen Wheeler (D., Mont.), for a month's delay in the induction of fathers and a mounting wave of opposition from local draft boards against such induction

In a telegram to Wheeler in Montana, McNutt said that the draft of fathers could not be delayed beyond Oct. 1, if the quotas for the armed services were to be filled.

The senator said he was requesting Senate Majority Leader Barkley and House Speaker Rayburn to call congress back into session before the Sept. 14 expira-

MISFORTUNE STRIKES AGAIN

Son Hurt In Mishap on Same Highway Where Parents Were Killed Week Ago.

Misfortune continued to follow the Arlo J. Rush family, of near Ontario, today.

One week ago yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Rush met death in an accident on U. S. Route 30 S. and 21 years previous to that, two of their sons were killed while riding bicycles on the same highway.

Today an 18-year-old boy is in Galion City hospital minus his left arm following an accident last night in which a car owned by Orie Rush, 18, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Rush, sideswiped a Greyhound bus on the same highway near Galion and then collided with another car.

Young Rush was a passenger in the car. He suffered lacerations and bruises.

Losing his arm as a result of the crash is Melvin Coulter, Perrysville R. D. 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Coulter of Bucyrus.

Celler Says Morgenthau Fails To Count Local Taxes.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Rep. Emmanuel Celler, (D.,N.Y.) today accused Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., of appealing to "the shallow thinker" with his assertion that the American taxpayer pays less taxes than taxpayers in the United Kingdom and Canada.

"It is significant," said Cellar in a statement, "that the secretary's statement, supported by charts, refers to federal taxes only. The complete tax burden of any country can be measured only by the total taxes paid by the individual taxpayer.

". . . Morgenthau ignores completely the heavy burden of state and local taxes in the United States; as well as the multitude of 'indirect' or 'hidden' taxes. He includes in his statement only federal income taxes."

AIRPORT JOB STRIKES SNAG

Mayor Learns War Production Board Hasn't Oked Project For Needed Materials.

The State Route 13 relocation stumbling block in the path of the Mansfield airport expansion project loomed bigger today when Mayor W. J. Locke learned that the War Production board hasn't determined that the airport is an essential job and so far has not approved release of materials for the highway work.

News of the delay that could become serious came to the mayor from the state highway department in Columbus which must have WPB approval of the relocation of Route 13 before road materials will be released.

Mayor Locke said today he was having photostatic copies made of the letter from the Civil Aeronautics authority which approved the airport project and will mail the copies to the highway department to present to the WPB in Washington

The mayor said he was confident the letter will be sufficient evidence that the government believes the project is essential to the war program and expressed the belief that the delay won't be serious

"We have been turned down by the WPB on our first application for materials for most of the city projects in the past year, but we have been able to get what we needed for all of them by follow-

Expect Lifting Of Alcohol Ban To Curb Rackets

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Growing concern in White House circles over the revival of two prohibition evils—bootlegging and hi-jacking may force the War Production board soon to permit distillers to replenish dwindling liquor supplies, it was reported today.

War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes and Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson are understood to have interested themselves in the problem, and are expected to dictate or participate in its solution.

Distillation of beverage spirits was banned months ago by WPB in order to build up a stockpile of industrial alcohol needed for war purposes. At the time the board acted, supplies of industrial alcohol were below what was regarded as the safety line.

The board also was looking ahead to the day when industrial alcohol would be used in large quantities in the production of synthetic rubber. Because those plants have not come into production as early as had been expected, responsible officials declare that the stockpile now is adequate to meet current and anticipated war needs.

Take Troina to Drive Germans From Mt. Etna

Bombings Reported Forcing Nazis to Hills In North, Total of 125,000 Axis Captives Taken Since Start of Sicily Campaign.

(By United Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa—American doughboys have captured the mountain-top stronghold of Troina in the fiercest battle of the Sicilian campaign and the main Axis defense line, shattered at key points, was believed falling back today under heavy bombing to the hills north of Mt. Etna.

A total of 125,000 prisoners has been taken by the Allies and Italian troops seemed to have been withdrawn completely from the front lines. Germans defending Troina lost heavily when the American Seventh army's crack units—supported by a great artillery and dive-bomber attack—seized the city.

It also was announced that the Allies had occupied the tiny volcanic island of Ustica, 40 miles north of Palermo, as the campaign entered its fifth week.

The capture of Troina by the famous First division was of tremendous importance in blasting the southern and western lines around Mt Etna and the Germans fought to the last, to hold this junction between the Hermann Goering division and the 15th panzer division, which is defending threatened Adrano to the south.

The Germans were fighting to hold the road and railroad that runs along the western side of the volcanic peak while their defeated forces on the south or Catania front withdrew. Canadian and British forces are hammering their way close to Adrano, which is astride the escape road.

But the capture of Troina permitted the Americans farther north to push on toward Bronte, which is on the same road, thus threatening to cut off the Germans at Adrano, which now appeared to be untenable for the enemy.

The new gains narrowed the battle front from 170 miles on July 20 to approximately 45 miles in length and it was believed the enemy was falling back for a new stand at Randazzo Pass, north of Mt. Etna tion between Etna and the Caronie Nebrodie mountain range, but Allied air fleets have been hammering this road and many other targets as far as Messina with relentless fury Every type of airplane was hurled into the assault on the cracking and retreating Axis forces.

Some 350 tons of bombs were dropped on Messina alone during round-the-clock attacks, while other planes raked the roads and junctions throughout the enemy sector with bombs and machine-gun bullets. Scores of flaming vehicles were left on the highways, while RAF Wellingtons ranged northward and attacked the harbor of Naples. They also hit 30 landing craft on the beaches near Messina, from which the Allies have been attempting to prevent evacuation of enemy personnel.

The retreating Germans have laid heavy mine fields and again resorted to all types of booby

AIM: Halsey Forecasts Battle Of Japan as U. S. Sweeps Ahead

(By United Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific—The Allied drive to force the Japanese from the South Pacific will be pushed relentlessly until it becomes "the battle of Japan," Admiral William F. Halsey, American commander in the South Pacific said today.

In a statement issued at his headquarters marking the first anniversary of the start of the Solomons campaign at Guadalcanal, Halsey said the Allied strength was greater than ever and expressed confidence in victory that would destroy the enemy.

"We shall push forward until the battle of the South Pacific becomes the battle of Japan," he said.

The statement, issued soon after American capture of Munda had laid open the enemy's Solomons strongholds to imminent attack, envisaged a constant broadening of the offensive started June 20 under Gen. Douglas MacArthur, supreme commander in the South and Southwest Pacific.

A start on reducing the enemy's bases near Munda was made by more than 100 bombers and fighters in an aerial assault on Japanese positions at Rekata Bay on Santa Isabel island east of New Georgia.

Sixty-five tons of bombs were dropped at Rekata Bay yesterday, silencing all anti-aircraft positions and causing considerable damage to enemy installations, the communique reported

SWEEP: Reds Within 18 Miles Of Kharkov In Circling Drive

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(AP)—Information received from Russian guerrillas behind the German lines today said the Nazis were carrying out a general civilian evacuation of the Smolensk region, Smolensk, 220 miles west of Moscow and probably the most important German base in all Russia, would be endangered by complete deflation of the Orel salient to the southeast.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Russian tank and motorized columns, bettering the speed of their winter offensive, crashed through the northwestern defenses to within 18 miles of outflanked Kharkov today and threatened to envelop Russia's fourth largest city from the rear.

(British military observers in London forecast that the Russian capture of Kharkov may be "only a matter of days.")

The latest advance put the Russians within striking distance of Kharkov, front dispatches said Other forces are within 25 miles due north of the city.

Zolochev, 22 miles northwest of Kharkov, fell to Soviet forces yesterday, only 24 hours after they had reduced the Axis bastion at Belgorod, 35 miles to the northeast. Last winter it took the Russians four days to cover the same distance—and only three days later they captured Kharkov.

Streaming through a 45-mile-wide breach in the Axis defenses above Kharkov, the Russians hammered the enemy back across barren flatlands that offered nothing in the way of natural defenses.

The Soviet offensive of last winter carried straight through Kharkov without a halt, then pressed on almost to the banks of the Dneiper river. But a German counter-offensive drove the Russians out of Kharkov and Belgorod a month later.

The Russians advanced 15 to 37 miles and captured 150 towns and villages in the three days ended yesterday. Besides Zolochev, they overran Kasachyalopan, 25 miles north of Kharkov, Khotmyzhsk, 35 miles west of Belgorod, and

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

LONDON—(By Wireless)—Another little episode left over from Sicily—

Although there had been hard going in some areas of the Sicilian campaign, around Palermo we went just about as fast as motor vehicles could carry our advanced forces. There was no front in the generally understood sense of term. That is, no line where armies were massed on both sides slugging it out.

Clapper

Italians were surrendering in large numbers, while the Germans handled artillery units in a kind of weak rear-guard action.

An officer of Seventh army headquarters, Lieut. John Sensany, formerly of the St. Louis Star-Times, was sent out to go as far as possible and find a good location for an advance army press headquarters. Several of us went along—Ernie Pyle, who was going to stay there and write about the army combat engineers; Jack Thompson of the Chicago Tribune, whose long beard entranced the Italian women wherever our staff car stopped, and Chris Cunningham of the United Press, who went into Gibraltar with the expeditionary headquarters when the North African landings took place last November.

We headed east over the coast road from Palermo. The road had been blown up in two places by the retreating enemy, and we had to detour. American engineers already had taken out many road mines and stacked them along the sides of the road. They were blasting road blocks out at some places as we passed.

When we reached the headquarters of the division that was leading the advance, its vanguard was moving so fast that headquarters was not certain where the front line was. We moved on.

Driving over a beautiful scenic highway which tourists used before the war, we reached an ancient small town which had just been occupied a few hours before. We stopped in the village square in the shadow of a cathedral several centuries old.

Lieut. Col. Chester James, of Craig, Colo., had led the advance guard of the division in at dawn. They had a hard fight in one trap, but by using Ranger tactics blasted it through.

With them was Lieut. Col. William King, of Kansas City, Mo., a chaplain, moving in the thick of the fight and giving first aid. Soldiers said that if he could take it without any weapons to defend himself, then they could take it.

We drove around the town, then out a side road, turning into the main highway again a mile east of town. As we came up on the highway we saw some puffs of smoke a mile away that looked like shellfire. Army ambulances were parked on the roadside. Several soldiers ducked into a ditch just as we came up. We stopped the car, hopped out, looked and ducked.

We discovered that we had run into our own advance battery, which was fighting it out with one or two German guns ahead. Our engineers were trying to repair a road block half a mile ahead, and the Germans were shelling the engineers to drive them off.

We could hear the whistle of the shells, and you couldn't help ducking, although none of them fell nearer to us than half a mile. Old-timers at it, like Ernie Pyle, said you could tell by the sound of a shell whether it was falling short or going over you.

One shrapnel casualty was brought up to an ambulance, where first aid was given. There were several more wounded down at the road block, and a car went in after them. Our battery was hammering rather hard, and there was a sharp racket, for half an hour or so. Finally someone said, "Well, this seems to be the end of the line." So we turned around.

We spotted a couple of locations for an advance press headquarters, then went back to headquarters of the division, where Ernie dropped off.

I don't know how Ernie felt about it, and he would never say, but it seemed sad to leave him there—a frail little fellow in army fatigue coveralls, carrying a bedroll. It seemed as if he was being left all alone with the whole war. But that's the way Ernie likes it, and that's why he is the most popular correspondent with the Allied forces.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—Our system of government being as it is, there is no way to escape a period of hard going next year when we will have to elect President Roosevelt for a fourth term or elect his successor. The campaign is sure to be one of the bitterest in our history, for the opposition sincerely believes that President Roosevelt and his circle are determined to change the old American relationship between the citizen and the state and adopt the European concept of the Fascists, Nazis and Communists.

Pegler

Mr. Roosevelt is a hard, resourceful fighter with plenty of guile who will throw heavy punches from all angles and Henry Wallace, his vice president, undoubtedly spoke ex cathedra although he may have spoken out of turn, when he said in a speech in Des Moines the other day, "We are going to have a glorious fight. I welcome this fight. The sooner it comes and the hotter it gets, the better."

Wallace added that he thought this fight would not interfere with the war effort, but he surely must be mistaken, because Russia and Britain have been dealing with President Roosevelt personally and there will be a period of doubt during the campaign when neither they nor we will know whether the country will go under new management, subject to new ideas and policies, after election.

At home in normal times, business usually slows down to a trudge during a campaign year, and Stalin and Churchill know enough about us to be warned that we have a custom of going more or less nuts every four years. It seems sure that our commitments will be up for review if not for revision in the election, particularly the promise, never authorized or indorsed by the people, to spread the four freedoms and to make the Italians and Germans adopt a system of government to our liking, forsaking dictatorship, while Russia is treated as a special case because Russia is on our side and is too big for us to handle.

We lost much time and progress during the 1940 campaign while both candidates kidded the public with promises to keep out of war, both knowing that war was coming our way, and the president, who found himself on a spot, had to hold back lest he be accused of seeking war by preparing for it and defeated by the very people in whose interest the war program should have been pushed 24 hours a day.

The rival candidate, whoever he is, will be bound to promise to continue the war until Japan is beaten, even though Germany may be down and out and given over to communism by then, but there will be a hot or, as Wallace puts it, a glorious fight on domestic issues.

The opposition will comb the record and have at Wallace with his own disparagement of the bill of rights and his flirtatious wink at Stalinism, and Mrs. Roosevelt will hear over and over her remarks that "all of us," meaning every man and woman in the nation, should be told what to do, or conscripted, for civilian labor duties under the likes of Harry Hopkins, and that she sometimes doubts that the people of the United States are ready for self-government.

Wallace says the opponents of the president, to whom he applies the bitter word "enemies," refusing to meet opposition on dispassionate, intellectual grounds, never have adjourned politics; thus, he invites the retort that this very speech of his was political, that Mrs. Roosevelt's endless travels, even in high-priority planes, and always two-by-two with her secretary while other war mothers who also wanted to see their sons, remain at home, are political journeys, and that even in the peril of war the president found places for many repudiated New Dealers but ignored Jim Farley and Herbert Hoover for political reasons and no other. He invites, also, of course, reminders of the almost incredible political favoritism shown by the New Deal and even by the department of justice which is supposed to be impartial and incorruptible, to the audacious rascals of the union rackets in their unrestrained profiteering to the extent of hundreds of millions at the expense of the workers, the war effort and, ultimately, of the treasury of the whole people which, in the end, had to pay this loot.

Wallace, of course, never did deserve his rating. Like many mock-officers who were commissioned out of hand with no qualifications for any rank in any service, he was appointed vice president and is no more valid than a Kentucky colonel. But he speaks by authority we may be sure, and when he promises a fight with the gloves off and speaks as he does of enemies and hatred among our own people, that is good warning that the New Deal is planning to be rough and dirty.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: Nothing in years has swept the feminine population off its feet like the ineffable voice of Frank Sinatra. Being an old newspaperman himself, he herewith does a chorus without benefit of music.—D. K.)

Frank Sinatra Says:

KNOW what makes me laugh? It's that overworked phrase . . . "A self-made man." I just don't believe that there is such a thing. A man has talent or integrity or industry or a combination of all three. So he plugs along and one fine day finds himself a president, a headliner or a millionaire. But he knows that all the time, a handful of people were as responsible for his success as he, himself, is. The little contingent could include a wife, a family, a father and mother, a business adviser or a few close friends. This little clique picks him up when the going gets tough and bumpy, buoys him with encouragement and good advice and helps keep him pushing along on the right road. Those seconds in your corner are SO tremendously important.

If, from all of this, you get the idea that this is somewhat autobiographical, you're not far from wrong. It's what I was leading up to, the story of all those who helped make me whatever you think I am today.

Nobody comes before my wife Nancy. That goes for now and for all time. Like most young people, we struggled along quite a bit in the beginning. For a stretch, I was knocking out the gaudy sum of $20 per week. Then it zoomed stratospherically to $25. In all this period, Nancy kept right on grinning and making those few bucks go a long way. Today, she's just as considerate, just as understanding.

And, too, I'm immensely grateful that the kids who've been so generous to me are just as nice to her. Nobody's ever told me that, for glamour purposes, I should get cagy about having a family. I'm glad to say that kind of promotional strategy has gone by the boards. We have a lovely daughter and another baby is on the way. I'm still judged on the merit of my performing . . . nothing else. I'm permitted my private life which is something I'm afraid singers and film stars of yesterday never could say.

People have been saying nice things to me. Perhaps the nicest is their comparison of my voice with that of Bing Crosby's. Thanks . . . but I can't see it. There's only one Bing and he's the master. There isn't any singer around today who can remove his crown . . . it's welded on.

If inspiration counts for anything, I owe Bing plenty. Probably a million or so kids have listened to him and gone away with the idea that they too, in some way, could duplicate his success. I wasn't an exception. I was knocking around, not sure of my future, taking jobs that at the moment seemed exciting. One day Nancy and I saw Bing make a personal appearance at a theater in Newark. When we left I had made up my mind. Now I really knew what I wanted.

The next day I resigned my newspaper job and got set to take my chances as a singer.

I don't think many employes can say of a boss, "He's a great guy." Harry James, one of my earliest employers in the music business, rates that compliment and many more. I was singing with Harry's band when it was a new venture for both of us and we were fighting hard for success. Tommy Dorsey, then as now one of the top bandleaders, offered me a chance to sing in the big leagues. When he heard about it, Harry said to me, "Take Tommy's bid, Frank. He can pay you more than I can. It's really a break." I had a year and a half to go on my contract when I left the James band. But Harry released me with no entangling ties to combat in the future.

FLOOD TOLL AT 19, FOUR MORE BODIES FOUND

Red Cross, Health Officials on Duty, Property Loss Set At $4,000,000.

(By United Press)

SUTTON, W. Va.—Tireless rescue workers today searched for more victims in flood-drenched central West Virginia after discovering four bodies late yesterday and abandoning hope for another, bringing the death toll to 19, with four persons still missing.

The bodies of a brother and sister, Willard Nelson, 10, and Edna May Nelson, 6, were found yesterday in the receding waters of Island Creek which had already given up the bodies of their two sisters, Ruth, 16, and Virginia, 8. Their father, Floyd Nelson, 51, is still missing.

Earlier J. B. Bartlett, of Gassaway, reported the discovery of the body of Chris Simons at Heaters, whose wife is also believed to have died in the flood, and the body of Mrs. Tom Daugherty was discovered near the home of Mrs. Lydia Queen, at Heaters.

A mass funeral is being arranged for the four Nelson children.

At Grantsville, rescue workers found the body of Mrs. Howard Bee, 25, lodged in a wire fence about a quarter of a mile from her home at the mouth of Laurel creek. Police said hope had been abandoned for her six-months-old daughter.

Still missing were Phyllis and Peggy Queen, of Heaters, Mrs. Chris Simons and Floyd Nelson.

Red Cross and state department of health officials have entered the stricken area to guard against the spread of disease from contaminated water.

Unofficial damage estimates based on accounts of witnesses climbed as high as $4,000,000. J. Holt Byrne, publisher of the Braxton county Central, said damage to railroads in the area would amount to $1,500,000. State road commission officials estimated highway damage at $300,000 and property, crop and livestock damage was reported to be approximately $2,000,000.

CLEVELAND GETS 'WHITE MARKET'

Farmers' Club Sets Up Plan To Let Buyers Harvest Own Purchases.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — The Farmers' Club of Cleveland's Chamber of Commerce offers a new wartime food market to combat the black variety—a white market.

Organizetd to discourage clandestine deals in fruits and vegetables, the white market seeks to provide growers in the Cleveland district with regular outlets at considerable saving to the consumer.

"Primary object of the white market plan is to conserve within the Cleveland area the food raised here," Farmers' club secretary Charles A. Thomas explained.

"It is reported some crops already have been lost because of labor shortage and many more crops, for a like reason, cannot be disposed of profitably through the regular marketing channels."

The plan provides that buyers harvest their own purchases with consent and under supervision of the Farmes' club and that sale of ungraded fruits and vegetables by the grower be conducted on a run of the crop basis.

Rules for white market procedure include Producers with surpluses to furnish the Farmers' club with information of places and quantities of food available; the club to establish minimum quantities of any article to be publicized; buyers to go to addresses furnished daily with published notices valid only 24 hours; buyers to carry their own containers; licensed hucksters and peddlers to be sold food as well as individual buyers.

PICNIC OFF

A farewell picnic planned for Sunday by the Bellville Church of Christ for Rev. M. M. Scott and H. R. George has been postponed due to an accident in which George was injured.

An employe of the Parcel Air Ordnance depot in Shelby, George fell 10 feet to a cement pavement while at work. He is now at Shelby hospital suffering a possible concussion.

Rev. Scott will leave the church Sept. 1 to take over the pastorate of the Palmyra church and George, superintendent of the Sunday school, is also moving from Bellville.

Up and Down THE STREET

Picnickers at North Lake park who have missed the lake for the past three weeks are going to find it's there again when they go back next week. With the completion of a new dam at the east end of the lake and repair of a leak in the lake drain, water is being turned back into the big pool. The repairs weren't ready in time for the heavy rains this week, so it's going to take a little longer for the lake to reach its former level, Park Superintendent Frank Burton said. The lake was drained to permit the construction of the new dam. Fish will be placed in the lake after the water level climbs.

Here are some facts to make Richland county housewives sit up and take notice. It has been estimated that one tablespoon of waste household fats saved every day by each of the county's 20,514 families during the second year of the WPB fat salvage campaign would provide enough glycerin to make 984,672 anti-aircraft shells. Indications are that nation-wide results of the campaign's initial year ending the first week in July totaled more than 65,000,000 pounds of household fats. This is one-third of the annual quota for the nation of 200,000,000 pounds. Ohioi is asked to salvage 1,097,000 pounds of fat a month.

A two-year old cow, owned by a Mansfield man, has established an enviable record in the production of milk and butter fat. The cow, named Green Meads Queen Wistaria, and owned by Roger A. Black, Marion avenue road, completed a year's production record of 13708.4 pounds of milk and 599.2 pounds of butter fat, according to the American Guernsey Cattle club, Peterborough, N. H. Besides this creditable record, this cow produced a healthy calf for her owner.

ENDS CONTRACT TO GET LABOR

Army Transfers Work From Seattle Area to Speed Fortress Output.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A drastic cancellation of army contracts in the Seattle area has been ordered by the war department, D. C. Speaker said today, to give the Boeing Aircraft company an opportunity to recruit workers to get the lagging production of Flying Fortresses back on schedule.

No other means was found to correct the situation immediately, Speaker said, when the output of the heavy bombers, occupying a top priority rating in war plans, fell behind monthly production forecasts by 20 several weeks ago.

"The Seattle area is one of critical labor shortage," Speaker pointed out, "and as Boeing's inability to get replacement workers continued, Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson took the extraordinary step of transferring all possible army production except the badly needed planes to other areas.

Speaker said he understood that production has lagged behind forecasts to a limited extent at plants other than Boeing, but so far as he knew the Seattle situation was the only one considered serious enough to warrant the action taken by Patterson.

RUSSIA AIDED BY 1,500-MILE U. S. RAILROAD

American-Built System In Persia Used as Supply Route For Allies.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The 1,500-mile American-built railway system in Persia, which serves as an alternative supply route to Russia, today is working at full capacity.

Maj. Gen. W. D. Styer, chief of staff, army service forces, told a press conference that huge amounts of supplies are now being shipped from the American-built Persian gulf ports of Korram Shahr and Bandar Mashur to Teheran for transhipment by truck to Russia.

Styer, who recently returned from a 37,000-mile, 54-day tour of major war zones, said the railway system is the largest single line of communication controlled by the Allies.

"We have reached the point of efficient operation on this line, and we are really going to town," he said.

Styer stated that the single-track, multi-gauge rail line is under nominal British control but is operated by U. S. transportation units with native aid.

"We try to use Persians as far as possible on this line because we don't want the project to fold up completely when the war is over," he explained.

Styer said he also visited the bomb-pocked ports of North Africa, many of which have been completely cleared of obstructions for use as invasion bases.

Mateur and Bizerte, he declared, were the worst hit. Coupled with the destruction wrought by Allied bombing, the Germans blocked the harbor of Bizerte by piling merchant ships three-high, he said.

Styer reported that German destruction of arms, trucks and field pieces in North Africa was just as thorough. He estimated that "not more than 500 or 600 pieces could be salvaged for future use."

At Mateur, he found between 400 and 500 guns "obviously destroyed." Their barrels were effectively breached and their magazines scraped. Parts of expensive field glasses and Luger pistols were found scattered along the roadside, he said.
